In days before chloroform was discovered, [illegible] a man, held him down, [illegible] off his leg, if they thought it necessary. All he could do was to look on and yell.

Uncle Sam is in that position today. Two classes of doctors, railroad owners and railroad workers, have made up their minds to remove both of Uncle Sam's legs for a little while, taking away the railroads on which he travels. And all he can do is look on and feel sorry for himself.

It ought to be possible for a great nation to have more than that to say about its own affairs.

The President, who held conferences all day yesterday, will do all that he can do as an individual to prevent the strike. But all he can do, unfortunately, is coax, which is not usually effective. He can use troops to suppress disorders and compel respect for the mails, but that will not transport freight and population.

The two million railroad workers have a fund of two million dollars ready to carry them through the strike. That will be one dollar a day for each worker, for one day—not a great financial provision.

The railroad owners rely on the financial weakness of the workmen. When they can no longer eat they must work.

The reliance of the workers is on their numbers and physical power, the extent to which they may be able to frighten owners of railroads with danger to property and other dangers.

The public, awaiting an operation that may or may not be performed, squirms and yells. Cities collect fleets of automobiles with which to bring in milk, bread and coal. Detroit, remembering with relief that Henry Ford owns the one railroad in the United States on which there will be no strike, can at least count on plenty of firewood. Ford's road taps great forests. But you can't eat wood or build automobiles with it.

If Japanese airships suddenly appeared above our cities, menacing inhabitants, or if long-range guns from ships far out at sea began bombarding our coast towns, we should have to take our medicine and make the best of it.

But when the entire nation is menaced within its own borders by a small section of its own population, every manufacturer and business man suddenly told his business may cease, every worker informed that his work and his pay may stop, mothers wondering whether they will be able to get food supplies for their children, it ought to be possible to do something besides sit and wait and hope for the best.

A dispatch of the International News Service quotes W. G. Lee, president of the Railroad Trainmen, encouragingly. "I would be glad to attend a conference of union leaders and railroad executives in Washington if President Harding should see fit to call the leaders of both sides to the Capital." That message shows the right spirit.

However it is done, this threatening strike should be settled and prevented. The nation can recover from war, from the loss of ten thousand millions lent abroad, the stagnation of foreign trade, with customers all over the world half bankrupt.

If we remain united and all the elements of the nation work together, war memories will gradually fade, prosperity will come back greater than ever.

But if one part of the nation begins fighting with another part, if organized labor and organized capital attack the interests of the entire people, regardless of the general welfare, it will be a sad day for all, especially for those responsible for precipitating the trouble.

If an angel from above came down to inspect us, a sad report would be taken back. That angel would find us, without the faintest excuse, preparing to enter a life and death struggle among ourselves instead of resorting to arbitration and reason.

The angel, looking over the newspapers, which are the more or less distorted mirrors of what we call civilization, would read: "Policeman puts man in duel"; next, "Wealthy broker slashes wife"; "Star boarder held in slaying."

He would find attention concentrated on "Babe dethe Lambs," and learn that "Babe" is a 200-pound baseball player ignoring certain rules.

Most of the news would fill the imaginary visiting angel with loathing, with contempt for the "lower animals," with horror at the crimes of the gutter, and the "high class" news, which deals with the stupidity of so-called "high society" and the cupidity of high finance.

MCADOO IS READY.

Coakley, in reply to a question by the court, declared that if he were allowed to proceed to these exhibits he would be ready to proceed with the formal hearing of the charges against him on the first Monday in November.

The case of McIsaac was then called. Like Coakley, McIsaac appeared for himself. He stated in reply to questions that he was ready to proceed with the trial of the charges against him at any time the court might see fit to designate. The first Monday in

FEDERAL MOVE TO AVERT R.R. STRIKE

Brotherhood Chiefs Will Confer With Labor Board Thursday Afternoon

Washington, Oct. 18.—Official announcement of the administration plan for meeting the railroad strike situation is expected from the White House after the Cabinet meeting today. It is expected that the Department of Justice will not only make use of the weapon of injunction, but legal action will be taken to tie up the vast strike funds of the railroad employes.

By International News Service.

With leaders of the railway brotherhoods stating "peace with honor will be welcomed," the first important open move by the Federal government to avert a nation-wide railway strike was made today.

The railway labor board, whose authority was assailed by the strike threat, today summoned the heads of the four Railway Brotherhoods to meet with it at Chicago Thursday afternoon. The invitation was extended after two members of the Board had conferred with President Harding and other officials at Washington.

The nature of proposals to be submitted the Brotherhood chieftains was unknown to Warren S. Stone, Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who accepted the invitation with alacrity.

Meanwhile the strike situation, involving upwards of 2,000,000 Railway workers and affecting every important railway in the country, was considered by President Harding and the cabinet. It was reported from Washington that President Harding would be urged to name a board of conciliation to deal with the proposed walkout, scheduled to start Oct. 30.

Secretary of Labor Davis, who has conversed with the chiefs thoroughly with the Railway Labor Board, was to ex-

OBJECTS TO SUPREME COURT

Attorney Facing Charges Wants Trial Held Before Superior Judges

Change of venue from the Supreme to the Superior Court was asked by Daniel H. Coakley today when, with Daniel V. McIsaac, he appeared before Justice Braley in the Supreme Court in response to the notices served upon him in connection with the charges brought by the Boston Bar Association seeking his disbarment and that of McIsaac and William J. Corcoran.

Corcoran, through his attorney, filed a formal disclaimer, stating that charges were brought after he had ceased to be a resident of Massachusetts and that he had "ceased to exercise the office of attorney and counselor at law."

All three attorneys are charged by the Bar Association with misconduct in their capacities as lawyers.

The case of Coakley was the first called. Coakley, representing himself, appeared, and immediately filed application for a change of venue.

In explaining his position on this matter, Coakley said that most if not all of the charges brought against him by the Bar Association formed a part of the case against Nathan A. Tufts, formerly district attorney of Middlesex county, recently removed by the Supreme Court.

Coakley said that inasmuch as five justices of the Supreme Court had heard and had passed upon these charges they would be prejudiced against him.

Even if, he continued, his case were heard by the two members of the Superior Bench who did not sit in judgment in the Tufts case, they would be embarrassed by what had gone before and might find themselves in the position of differing from their fellow judiciers.

DECISION NEXT MONTH.

Justice Braley announced that he would render his decision in this point on the first Monday in November. He asked Coakley to file a formal application.

Coakley then requested the court to issue an order giving him access to certain exhibits which he had furnished in the case against Tufts and which he declared are vital to the proper preparation of his own defence.

These exhibits, if was asserted, are checks and other similar documents, dealing with accounts.

Coakley said that since turning them over at the time of the Tufts trial he has not been allowed to see them.

After Coakley had finished his plea Justice Braley announced that he would render a decision on this point later. It is expected that this will be done within a few days.

Attorneys Robert G. Dodge, Andrew J. Marshall and J. J. McCarthy, counsel for the Bar Association in the prosecution of the charges against Coakley, McIsaac and Corcoran, announced that they had no objection to Coakley's request provided they were allowed to have copies of the exhibits.

Kunin Tells Court He Handed $400 to Daniel J. Ryan, Now on Trial

The trial of former Prohibition Agent Daniel J. Ryan of New Jersey, who was indicted on the charge of asking and receiving bribes in Worcester liquor cases in which he made arrests, was resumed today before Judge James M. Morton, Jr., and a jury in Federal court.

Lewis Kunin, a cotton waste dealer on Franklin street, Worcester, and who was said to have paid $400 to influence Ryan's decision in the liquor case against him, testified for the government by Ryan on Sunday, October 16, 1920, while driving an automobile in which he had sixty-five gallons of alcohol. He said that he was taken into custody on the road to Holden and that he was held in $5,000 bail.

The witness said that the next day he met Ryan at the office of Lawyer Krinsman and that Ryan told him he wanted to see him outside the office.

According to testimony, Ryan was in the automobile which he had seized the day before from Kunin. Kunin testified that, while talking to Ryan that he told him Krinsman had paid him $200 that Saturday afternoon and that "I should give him $400 myself." The witness further testified Ryan told him there would not be any case against him and that he would get his goods back.

Asked by Attorney Robert O. Harris, conducting the case for the government, if he had paid Ryan the $400, the witness replied he did.

Kunin also testified that the next time that he saw Ryan was a week later in the Federal building in Boston. He also testified there was no complaint against him in Worcester.

Cross-examination brought the admission from Kunin that he was trying to sell the 65 gallons of alcohol to a man named McCarthy, a brother of former Prohibition Enforcement Officer William J. McCarthy.

Slump in Marks Has Caused Run on German Shops

Berlin Oct. 18.—(By the Associated Press)—The accidental slump in the price of German marks has caused a run on stores in many parts of Germany by foreign buyers who, despite the enhanced prices of most manufactured articles, are still able to purchase advantageously. The Swiss frontier, according to the Vorwaerts today, has been closed for across-the-border trading in textiles as Swiss buyers have completely stripped the frontier towns around Baden of every bolt of parel. It is also reported that the Swiss watch industry is almost paralyzed, on account of the cheapness of German watches in consequence to the slump in German marks.

HANOVER PREMIER TRUST LOSS COMING A MILLION TO U.S.

Depositors Will Not Receive 100 Cents on Dollar, Bank Commissioner Says

Money lost in the Hanover Trust Company will be in excess of one million dollars, Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen announced today.

It is improbable, he said, that depositors will receive 100 cents on the dollar.

The capital stock of the company was $100,000 and the surplus $100,000, at the time the institution was taken over by the bank commissioner. Both of these have been wiped out, he said today.

Under the double liability law, the bank commissioner is authorized to call upon the stockholders for an amount equal to that invested in stock. Commissioner Allen announced that he had sent notices to all the stockholders that they must contribute that equivalent which will provide another $400,000 for the settlement of the Hanover's affairs.

Even with this, Allen stated, the bank will be more than $100,000 short of the sum necessary to pay depositors in full.

The total deposits of the Hanover Trust Company at the time it was closed were approximately $4,900,000, with $1,100,000 of that in the savings department.

The loss in the Fidelity Trust Company, which was closed about the same time as the Hanover, was $4,100,00.

They were said to have taken the car from in front of Haskell's office on Beacon street and abandoned it on Webster avenue, Cambridge, after police had fired shots at them.

Lloyd George Announces He Will Leave for Parley As Soon As Possible

London, Oct. 18 (By the Associated Press).—Premier Lloyd George stated in the House of Commons upon the reassembling of that body today that he hoped to go to the Washington conference on the limitation of armaments and Far Eastern problems as soon as the parliamentary and general situation rendered it possible.

The other members of the British Empire delegation, the Premier said, would be A. J. Balfour and Lord Lee of Fareham, first lord of the Admiralty. Sir Auckland Geddes, the British ambassador at Washington, would act as a delegate, Mr. Lloyd George added, in the absence of the Premier or any other delegate.

The Dominions, said the Premier, will be represented as follows: Canada, Sir Robert L. Borden; Australia, George Foster Pearce; New Zealand, Sir John Salmond; India, Srinavasa Sastri; South Africa, by representatives of the British government.

The senior British naval expert the Premier announced, would be Admiral Earl Beatty, commander of the Grand Fleet, who would be succeeded in due course by Admiral Chadwick.

Lord Cavan, who was in charge of the British army operations in Italy in the last year of the war, would be the principal military expert, and Air Marshal Higgins would be the aviation expert, the Premier stated, while the secretary of the delegation would be Sir Maurice Hankey, who has been secretary of the Cabinet since 1909.

U. S. Will Be Ready to Discuss Debts

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 18.—When the statesmen of nine nations gather around the table here November 11 to settle the military and naval policies of the future, the administration will be clothed with authority to negotiate the settlement terms under which Europe is to repay the $11,000,000,000 borrowed during the war.

This became virtually assured today when Republican leaders of the House announced that the bill providing for the funding and refunding of the foreign loans, and their accumulated interest, probably will be passed by the House on Thursday. By that time the treaties will be out of the way in the Senate and the bill is expected to meet with but little opposition there.

Both President Harding and Secretary of State Hughes believe it would be "unfortunate to the subject of foreign debts is injected into the armament conference." They believe it would tend to delay and detract from the main purposes of the conference. Nevertheless, they believe it would be embarrassing for the administration if the matter is brought up and the administration had to confess that it is powerless to commit the United States.

Therefore, President Harding, has informed congressional leaders of his desire that the funding bill be rushed to passage, and they in turn have assured him that the new bill placing the power of settlement in a commission of five, instead of in the Secretary of the Treasury alone, has removed practically all congressional opposition.

The commission to arrange the refunding of the debt will be headed by the Secretary of the Treasury. It is expected also to include Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, and possibly Eugene Meyer, Jr., head of the War Finance Corporation.

The administration will be in a position to take part in a general financial conference to immediately follow the conference on armament if any of the debtor nations display a desire to discuss settlement.

NEW ENGLAND STATES BAND TOGETHER IN STRIKE CRISIS

Delegates from the six New England States will meet at the State House Tuesday to devise ways and means of protecting their communes against hoarding, profiteering and famine in the event of a railroad strike.

Governor Channing Cox, who has taken the lead among New England Governors in preparing for the emergency, announced the conference.

Governor Cox at the same time made known the identity of his "Secret Committee of Four," which he has had working on transportation and food problems since last February in preparation for just such an emergency.

It consists of the following:

Edward Cossley of the Walworth Manufacturing Company, chairman.

Frederick B. Snyder of Batchelder & Snyder, wholesale meat dealers, who has been investigating food problems.

James J. Storrow, who has investigated the fuel situation, including the gas and oil supply.

COMMITTEE OF 18.

This committee will immediately appoint sub-committees to confer. Cox will appoint an executive committee of 18 to work with Cooley's organization and the extent to which plans have been advanced may be gauged by the fact that the executive committee will have its first meeting tomorrow.

The incident with Hughes developments today it became apparent that a determined effort was to be made to avert the dire effects of the drastic Commonwealth Defence Act, passed during the war.

Attorney General J. Weston Allen was instructed to find out whether the act was still enforcible or died a natural death with the signing of peace.

Under the Commonwealth Defence Act, the state would assume mandatory control of the railroads, commandeer food supplies, fix prices, regulate the amount of food or fuel to be sold to the individual.

HULTMAN'S PLAN.

Allen was instructed to investigate the law following a conference with Governor Cox, Adjutant-General Jesse L. Stevens, and chairman Eugene C. Hultman of the State Commission on the necessities of life.

Hultman started on a plan of his own, preparing questionnaires to be sent to wholesalers, retailers and jobbers, asking their present prices and the amount of supplies on hand. This move was taken to forestall any attempt to profiteer at the public expense.

Under the war emergency law the State, probably through Commissioner Hultman, could operate railways and street railways, commandeer food and fuel, fix prices and limit the quantity of food or fuel to be sold to any individual.

LIMIT TO THREE TONS.

Commissioner Hultman, in outlining his plan, said he wanted the authority to limit the amount of coal to be sold to any person at any one time to three tons.

"That would prevent the rich from getting all the coal and save us the bother of taking it out of their cellars later," he explained.

In a long statement Commissioner Hultman appealed to the people not to become panic-stricken and indulge in a buying orgy, saying that was just what some dealers wanted.

His questionnaire to wholesalers, retailers and jobbers will first ascertain the amount of food and fuel on hand and then the price being charged at present.

In this way he hopes to check up dealers who may, if the strike materializes, try to capitalize the public hardship. He appealed to merchants to stock up and then conserve their stocks.

BROTHERHOOD CHIEFS AND LABOR BOARD TO CONFER IN CHICAGO

ADMINISTRATION TAKES STEPS TO AVERT STRIKE

plain theattuation to the Cabinet. As a last resort, it was believed President Harding himself would step in to avert a nation-wide strike.

A third group of important railroads, upon which the walkout will become effective November 2, was published, but President Stone and other union leaders refused to deny or affirm the correctness of the list.

Whether the Pennsylvania system was included in the fourth group comprising "all other railways" likewise remained a mystery.

William G. Lee, head of the Railway Trainmen's Brotherhood, voiced the stand of the brotherhood workers by declaring further threatened wage cuts imperiled their standard of living, attained after long sacrifice, and that the men would not work unless assured there would be an end to wage cuts.

Brotherhood Chiefs Summoned to Chicago

Chicago, Oct. 18 (By the Associated Press).—Telegrams summoning the chiefs of the Big Four Brotherhoods and the Switchmen's Union to a conference with the United States Railroad Labor Board in an endeavor to forestall an actual walkout on the nation's railroads, were dispatched to the labor leaders today.

The conference was called for 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the Labor Board headquarters here.

All of the members of the board are in the city except the public group, which has been in conference with President Harding and the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington. The public members will reach Chicago late today.

No outline of what the conference would discuss was announced, but it was said that new proposals would be presented to the labor men in an effort to prevent an actual cessation of work on the roads.

B. M. Jewel, head of the shop crafts which copries six of the eleven other standard rail organizations, none of which has yet issued an actual strike call, said he had not been summoned by the board. The board's first efforts, it was indicated, would be directed toward those organizations which have set strike dates.

"We are going ahead without plans for executive conferences,' Mr. Jewel said, 'and we will have reached our decision by the end of the week. At this time there has been absolutely no determination of what will be done."

Cleveland Conference of "Big Five" Cancelled

Cleveland, Oct. 18.—(By the Associated Press)—A scheduled meeting here today of the "Big Five" transportation brotherhoods was cancelled today when the five executives were requested by the railroad labor board to meet with the board in Chicago Thursday, Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, announced.

The message from the labor board reached Mr. Stone in his office here during the morning. He declared he had intimation of what the board wished to discuss with the leaders of the railroad workers, but said all scheduled conference here would be postponed until after the Chicago meeting.

Conference Regarded as Move Toward Peace

By International News Service

Washington, Oct. 18.—The calling of the heads of the railway brotherhoods to Chicago for a conference with members of the railway labor board was regarded in Washington today as the first step in "getting together" to avert the threatened nation-wide railroad strike.

News that the brotherhood chiefs had been requested to go to Chicago came to Washington just as the Cabinet was assembling at the White House for its first meeting since the strike began to assume menacing proportions. It was taken as a hopeful sign by members of the Cabinet.

Vice President Coolidge said: "I have no information other than that which has already been made public, but I sonocerely hope that a strike will be averted. With all the government agencies that can be utilized and with the known reasonableness of both the Brotherhoods and the executives, it seems to me that the differences may be settled without resorting to a strike."

Outstanding among the conflicting opinions and views which have prevailed here since the strike announcement in Chicago Saturday was the belief in official circles that both sides in the present critical controversy, and especially the labor group, were "bluffing."

Today there is a noticeable change of front. The feeling that the brotherhood chiefs are "bluffing" still persists, but this view of the situation has resulted in the fear that the leaders in Cleveland, having advanced thus far with their battle plans, must carry them through in order to "save their faces" with their constituencies.

BOARD TO BE SUGGESTED.

The suggestion will be made in the Cabinet meeting, probably by Secretary of Labor Davis, who has gone over the situation thoroughly with members of the Railroad Labor Board, that a board of conciliation be organized by the President to deal with the impending strike.

The staff of professional conciliators maintained by the Department of Labor, for the settlement of industrial disputes, is being held in readiness to take up the present controversy, but, under the law, these men may not inquire into the present difficulties until formally requested by the contending parties to do so.

The seriousness of the existing quarrel—with the date for the strike less than two weeks off—may cause the President to order these government conciliators to take charge, or it may be deemed advisable to create a separate board, consisting of Federal judges or other disinterested parties.

The conciliation also might be brought about and differences of the railroad executives and workers reconciled, it was pointed out, through the bringing together in Washington, or elsewhere, of representative railway heads and chiefs of the four brotherhoods by the President himself.

NOT OPPOSED TO STRIKE.

The situation was made complex today by indications that some railroad executives were not adverse to the walkout. They believed public opinion would condemn the striking workers in the event of a general tie-up, which might lead to breaking up of the "Big Four" brotherhoods and the loss of power by the railroad department of the American Federation of Labor.

Judge R. M. Barton, chairman of the labor board, and his colleagues who were summoned to Washington to discuss wage and rate adjustments with the Interstate Commerce Commission, are en route to Chicago after completing their work here with an informal report to the President.

Members of the commission took up routine tasks with the expectation that the next move in the efforts of the Federal government to ward off a strike would come from the White House.

Roads Continue Move to Reduce Rates

By Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 18.—Undeterred by threats of a general railroad strike, the railroads of the United States, through the Association of Railway Executives, were pushing plans today to apply to the Railroad Labor Board for an additional 10 per cent. reduction in wages.

Determination to press immediately for the reduction was announced by Thomas De Witt Cuyler, president of the association, in a statement which said that concurrently with the reduction "the benefit of the reduction shall, with the assent of the Interstate Commerce Commission, be passed on to the people in the reduction of existing railroad rates." How far and to what extent shall have been made in the meantime."

Referring to the suggestion of the public group of the labor board that the 12 per cent. wage decrease granted in July be translated immediately into lowered rates, Mr. Cuyler declared much of the decrease had been so transplanted even before the new wage scale became effective. He also cited a list of reductions announced since July 1, which, he said, on most roads "have amounted to more than the reduction in wages so far made," while on other roads the wage reductions "allowed no net return on operations, but merely provided against the further accumulation of a deficit."

Many railroad officials here appear to be convinced that the strike will become effective, and are preparing to meet it, some welcomed it.

"This is the time and the place for it," said F. D. Underwood, president of the Erie Railroad.

U. S. Will Seize and Operate Roads, Says Plumb

By Associated Press.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 18.—The threatened railroad strike will not last more than a week, because the sufferings of the general public will force the government to take possession of the roads and operate them, was the prediction made last night by Glenn E. Plumb, originator of the Plumb plan.

STATE TO CURB PROFITEERING AND HOARDING

Will Invoke Emergency Laws to Stop Hoarding and Profiteering During Strike

selling only a limited amount to each individual. If the war emergency law is found in force still, this request will be made an order.

Hultman's statement follows:

HULTMAN'S STATEMENT.

"Under the war emergency law act we can seize food, coal or anything else in Massachusetts. The first thing to be done is to determine the price of foodstuffs and the amount now on hand in order to check profiteering in the future.

"I am now preparing a questionnaire which will be sent without delay to every retail and wholesale dealer and every jobber in the State. The next step will be to determine the amount of food actually in the State.

"Massachusetts is in a really dangerous position, as are all the other New England States. One fact which illustrates our dependence on railroads is that the average haul of all the milk that comes into this State is 200 miles.

"I want the merchants to stock up and then regulate the quantity of sales of their customers until such time as the State itself will step in and place definite restrictions upon the amount of foodstuffs and other necessities to be distributed to any one customer.

PEOPLE MUST HELP.

"The people also ought to restrain their purchases. I believe the strike if it occurs will be over within from four to six weeks. A year ago, during the soft coal panic, the people rushed in to get coal and the prices shot up.

"Don't play the game that the fellow will something to sell wants you to play. The government can't do it all. The people must help.

"I want to have authority to limit the amount of coal and food which may be sold to any person. I want to be able to limit coal sales to three tons, so the rich can't get all the coal and we can't have the bother of taking it out of their cellars. We want authority to prevent the rich man from rushing in to buy up all the food and fuel, leaving the poor to suffer.

STAND UP AND KNOCK DOWN.

"I don't think we ought to fix prices as a general rule, but we want to be able to if necessity arises. We want to prevent both profiteering and hoarding. I believe in preparedness.

"I will make a survey of the gasoline supply. It is well enough to say [illegible] set food in the people by a fleet of motor trucks, but we must have the gasoline. We are absolutely dependent on the railroads for a gasoline supply."

Commissioner Hultman said that there was two or three months' supply of soft coal in Boston and that the anthracite situation here "was satisfactory."

IRISH CHEER AS THEY WRECK PRISON

Buildings and Other Property in Island Camp Destroyed by Interned Men

Cork, Oct. 18 (by the Associated Press).—The work of destruction, begun Sunday by the occupants of the Spike Island camp for interned prisoners when they became enraged because they were not permitted to attend mass, it is alleged, was continued today, the cheering of the prisoners as they carried on their operations being plainly heard in Queenstown.

The buildings on the island, known as Block B, were destroyed yesterday, while another group, known as Block A, was pretty well demolished today.

Volumes of smoke were observed ascending from the island, where the interned men, it was said, were burning their sleeping kits. Four of the prisoners have been badly injured.

Charge Ill Treatment in Irish Prison Camps

By Associated Press.

London, Oct. 18.—The revolt of interned prisoners in the Spike Island camp, reported from Cork last night, is attributed in Sinn Fein quarters to alleged ill-treatment of the men.

Conditions at the Bere Island camp in Bantry Bay are declared to be even worse than at Spike Island. The Dail Eireann representatives indicate their expectation, however, that the work of the joint commission appointed to examine into conditions will remove the grounds for complaint.

The concentration of Republican troops in Ulster, alleged as the ground for remobilizing the Ulster volunteers, is denied by Sinn Fein headquarters. It is declared there that the Sinn Fein contingents in Ulster are smaller than in any other part of the country, although substantial forces are located in the area of the six counties.

The presence of two rival forces in the Ulster area, both of them provided with arms, is causing apprehension in British government circles. Increased activity of British troops to prevent conflicts between the rival factions in Belfast have been arranged for and a large industrial school there has been commandeered for their reception.

Belfast, Oct. 18.—Joseph Connolly of Belfast has been appointed consul of the Dail Eireann in New York, replacing F. L. Fawsitt, who has assumed a position under the Dail commissioner, Harry Boland, in America. Mr. Connolly sailed for New York last Saturday.

The Falls road and North King street areas, the scenes of the worst rioting in the past few months, were included today in the order prohibiting the assembly of three or more persons.

Irish Conference to Be Reopened Thursday

London, Oct. 18.—(By the Associated Press)—The conference between Irish leaders and representatives of the British government will, it is expected in Sinn Fein quarters, be resumed Thursday. The interruption of the sessions after yesterday's meeting was due to the engagement of Mr. Lloyd George, in connection with the reopening of Parliament.

Meanwhile the committees of the conference, composed of the other members, will hold sessions for the advancement of the conference's work.

Several Irish experts have been summoned, to London to advise the Sinn Fein delegates and draw up reports for the consideration of the conference. Among the most notable of these is Lionel Smith-Gordon, a leading authority on rural reconstruction.

Smith-Gordon is heir to a British baronetcy and his wife is the daughter of United States Senator Fletcher of Florida.

COAKLEY ASKS CHANGE OF VENUE

November, he said, would suit him, "as well as any other date."

The case of William J. Corcoran was then called, and Robert J. Crowley of the law firm of James H. Vahey entered formal appearance for the accused attorney. Crowley said that Corcoran wished to file a formal disclaimer, reading as follows:

"And now comes the respondent, William J. Corcoran, and disclaims that he is and was at the time of the filing of the above petition a resident of and domiciled in the State of New York, and, furthermore, said respondent says that he has ceased to exercise the office of attorney and counsellor-at-law on ceasing to be a resident of the Commonwealth as aforesaid, and he disclaims all title to said office and expressly disclaims and resigns said office."

It was announced that the court's decision on this disclaimer would be handed down on the first Monday in November, when the other questions are decided.

At that time also it is expected that the court will announce its decision regarding the question of separate or common trials for the accused attorneys.

MRS. MURPHY TO TELL 'PRICE' OF HER FAME

Boston Men Linked With "Sacrifices" She Made to Become Film Star

"How I became a motion picture star without payment of money."

This is the theme of an interesting revelation Mrs. Frances Stuart Murphy says she will make to Attorney-General J. Weston Allen as soon as the decision is announced in the divorce case of her husband, Joseph A. Murphy. Mr. Murphy charged his wife with infidelity, naming Edward Ross, a Newton millionaire, as co-respondent.

TO EXPOSE BOSTON MEN.

"Most girls have to pay to get into the 'movies,'" said the petite screen star of the red-gold hair. "But I didn't pay. I became a motion picture star through the influence of certain Boston men and I intend to tell the attorney-general just what occurred before I took my place as a movie star.

"I intend to tell the attorney-general of all the sacrifices I made in order to attain stardom in the film world. It will make interesting reading and will show up the methods of a certain group of Boston men.

"Do you think I would do the things I did for money? I should say not. I desired to be a film star and I became one. What I did to become one is an interesting story, and I am going to tell all of it to the attorney general as soon as my name has been cleared of the charge of blackmail.

AWAITS COURT DECISION.

"I may have done things in the past that I should not have done, but I am not a blackmailer and never have been. The attempt to blacken my name will prove a boomerang for some people."

Mrs. Murphy is visiting Boston friends and will remain here until Judge Christopher T. Callahan of the Supreme Court renders a decision in her husband's divorce suit. Then she declares she will visit the State House and tell the story of her life from the time she came to Boston from Turkey at the age of eight years. She says the revelations she will make will involve many influential Boston men.

ORGANIST SUED BY GIRL SINGER AS ASSAILANT

Hartford Contralto Says Man Used Hands and Knee to Eject Her from Choir

Hartford, Oct. 18.—Miss Helen M. Connerton, contralto soloist and formerly member of the choir at St. Peter's Church, has brought suit for $1,500 on charges of assault and battery against James McGovern, organist at St. Peter's Church. The alleged assault took place in the choir of St. Peter's Church on September 4, while a body was being taken from the church following requiem high mass.

Miss Connerton had sung in St. Peter's choir for several years, but quit last January. She has a fine voice and because of this has been engaged for solos at many funerals.

According to Miss Connerton's story, the funeral service was over. The body was being wheeled down the aisle and at the time she was singing "Seme Rewast Day."

She had sung one verse when suddenly the organ stopped. Mr. McGovern turned toward her, she alleges, and said: "That's enough of that, get out of here."

When she refused to heed the command, Miss Connerton says that McGovern insisted; "Well, you will get out of here." Then, it is alleged, the organist took hold of the young woman, pushed along the platform and all but shoved her down a flight of steps. It is alleged that McGovern used both hands and one knee on the singer.

Miss Connerton then said that she acted only for a chance to get her music together, but even then, she alleges, she did not cease to be maltreated.

"I considered myself fortunate to get out alive," said Miss Connerton.

McGovern has a music studio in the Waverly Building. He has been organist at St. Peter's Church for many years.

ABDUCTED GIRL SOLD TO UNDERWORLD WOMAN BY HER CAPTORS

WAS FORCED TO MEET MEN IN LONELY CAMP SHACK

This is Act II. in the eight-day tradegy of Helena Anderson of Jamaica Plain.

It deals with the forcing of the fifteen-year-old girl into a lonely camp at Stoughton; the abuse she suffered at the hands of her four men captors; the way in which she was humiliated; the fight for possession of her virtue; the sale of her to "Nell" and "Nell's" associate.

Yesterday's recital ended with Helena Anderson entering an automobile on Huntington avenue the night of October 1, at the invitation of four personable young men who were apparently nothing more than friendly. She had left her home that night to attend a motion picture show and her entering the machine with the four bantering strangers she considered a lark.

But eight days later she was found wandering in the woods of Glen Echo Lake, Stoughton, bedraggled and dazed, her spirit of girlish fun dead, her life overshadowed by a great misfortune.

The story of what happened in between is supplied the Boston American by Miss A. O'Donnell of Stoughton, who discovered Miss Anderson lost in the woods.

Helena Unfolds Tragic Tale to Her Rescuer

To him, when her mind was still tortured by the memory of what happened, she unfolded the sordid tale.

When Helena Anderson entered the automobile she had no intention of wrong doing. The four young men, whom she did not know, offered to take her for a little ride, to which she mildly objected. But when the speeding car made like a homing pigeon for the dimly lighted outskirts of the city she protested. Her protests were laughed at. Still maintaining a semblance of good fellowship, her abductors scorned her fears as childish and scoffed at the idea that her would do her harm.

Helena's alarm became more clamorous as the car sped through unknown territory and her captors threw off their masks. She cried out for help, but it was too late. Cars on the road were few and the four in the machine with her took good care that the cries should be of no avail to summon passers-by.

The driver of the abduction car, as if by prearranged plan, made straight for Stoughton and the cottage section of Glen Echo Lake. They had evidently been there before. O'Donnell says that the neighborhood is the favorite haunt of young men who lure or force girls to accompany them to cottages which are boldly broken into during the absence of their owners and there spend week-ends in revelling and debauchery.

Her Captors Prove to Be Heartless Brutes

In any case, the shack to which the four took Helena Anderson was no appropriated. Its owner is in Australia.

Once safely hidden and with their web tightly about the hapless fly, the spiders threw off all outward appearance of civilization.

For the next day or two the sufferings endured by the fifteen-year-old child, whose little sisters were waiting at home to have their hair curled, need not be elaborated upon.

The hours in which monetary sale had trusted herself were apparently devoid of human pity.

The cottage in which she was kept is a two-room affair with a nondescript stall-like apartment off the living room. In the living room is the stove, two half-beds, a chair or two.

The bedroom boasts a single bed. In this shack lived Helena Anderson for eight days, tormented by her captors, handled from one to the other, finally sold.

One of the grim incidents of her eight days of horror was a fierce struggle between two of the men for possession of the girl. The two flew at each other ferociously. One of them, apparently a leader, was roughly handled, and an old cut on his head was opened, the blood flowing freely.

Drugged and Starved in Bleak, Uncomfortable Shack

While this was in progress Helena Anderson was kept in a dazed condition by the use of drugs. The drugs were in the form of pills, and she took them when one of the men told her they would prevent her from catching cold. For it was cold in the miserable little shack, and there was not too much food. Helena was nearly famished when she finally was thrown out from among her abductors and reached the O'Donnell cottage.

Three days of this treatment had drained the girl's capacity for suffering and caused her to think that nothing worse could be her fate, but this error in judgment was speedily corrected.

For early in the week of October 2 "Nell" and his male companion appeared on the scene in Stoughton.

The four original jailers of Helena had somewhat ironically comforted her in her supposed loneliness and told her they would bring a girl chum of the retreat to keep her company.

This companion was "Nell." O'Donnell is convinced, from Miss Anderson's story, that "Nell" is a depraved woman of the underworld, and one of unusual heartlessness.

Girl Is Sold to Woman and Man Companion

The four men who took the Jamaica Plain girl from Huntington avenue were getting tired, and also getting afraid. They feared detection. They turned pale every time an automobile passed through the little-travelled neighborhood.

In this situation, Helena Margaret Anderson "changed hands." She became the property of "Nell" and Nell's male friend. The money changed hands in the transaction, the girl states.

Under future conduct, left no doubt as to who was the actual owner of Helena Anderson.

Strained began to appear at the shack, and the girl was forced into their company. "Nell" acted as mistress of the strange household and did the introducing. These men paid well.

"Nell" and her man companion took care that the new element in the Anderson girl were of a proper degree of politeness to insure additional rentals for assistance and release. They were, furthermore, told a story shrewdly designed to disarm any sympathy they might possibly have felt for the hapless prisoner.

"Owners" Beat and Rob Helena of Money Gifts

Helena herself was constantly intimidated and on more than one occasion was beaten. The drugs given to her were constantly increased. She was robbed of the money flung to her in careless liberalities by the men who had taken advantage of her plight and in all things kept dependent on her evil companions.

She was a prisoner in the midst of people who would have been glad to set her free, a bond slave in a land of liberty. Her mind became a haze of things unreal, and home and the kindly influences of happier days seemed years and years behind.

But fate was working for the release of Helena Anderson, for her captors were not able to throw off the long arm of detection in preparing to cast her aside.

She was forced to sleep outside the cottage at least one night, and was told that she was not wanted any more. But her mind was weakened and her spirit crushed and she did not know how to find her way out of the woods.

Finally, driven to the last cruel step by terror, they stifled the last drop of pity in their breasts and thrust her forth from among them.

Divorcee Who Says Lawyer Offered Her Blackmail Job

MRS. MAYBELLE FLANAGAN.

BABY GUY FIGHTS FOR STILLMAN MILLIONS

By International News Service.

New York, Oct. 18.—Trustees and heirs under the will of the elder James Stillman today were served with copies of an order signed by Justice Morschauer, directing them to show cause why they should not be joined as defendants in the divorce action of the former president of the National City Bank against his wife, Fifi Potter Stillman.

The court order is returnable before Justice Morschauer in White Plains, N. Y., Oct. 21. It was obtained by John E. Mack, temporary guardian of baby Guy Stillman, and its purpose is to protect the child in his direct and potential sharing in the $37,394,009 estate of the late James Stillman.

The effect of this order will be to bring into court with declarations of their belief in the legitimacy or the illegitimacy of baby Guy, James Stillman's two sisters, Isabel, wife of Percy A. Rockefeller, and Elsie, wife of , William G. Rockefeller; and Charles C. and Dr. Ernest Stillman, brothers of the financier.

Mrs. Stillman and baby Guy also were named to appear under the order for the same purpose.

Under the will of the elder Stillman, James A. Stillman and his children inherit the bulk of five trust funds of $1,000,000 each.

The larger part of this goes to lineal descendants of James A. Stillman, in equal shares. Should baby Guy's legitimacy be shown, he will inherit almost one quarter of the original estate.

MRS. FLANAGAN BARES ALLEGED 'FRAMEUP'

Mrs. Maybelle Flanagan Says Lawyer Told Her That She Could "Earn Thousands"

"Instead of 'framing' others I've been 'framed' myself. Don't talk to me about the mythicalness of these blackmail plots. They are alive as life itself. They spread their tortuous plottings all about us.

"Even decent women have been approached by these blackmailing lawyers; I myself can testify."

These are statements of Mrs. Maybelle Flanagan, wife of Dr. Frank Flanagan, chief veterinarian at the Angell Memorial Hospital, of the Massachusetts S. P. C. A. Mrs. Flanagan tells of one lawyer, with offices in the Old South Building, who approached her with a proposal

"Instead of your starving along on the pitiful $12 a week alimony the doctor pays you," Mrs. Flanagan says the lawyer told her, "if you combined with me, to 'frame' a few people, you would earn thousands, where now you haven't pennies. There's money in the blackmail business."

DEMANDS EXPOSE.

"That," explained Mrs. Flanagan, "is what one rascally lawyer said to me, when I thought of retaining him to help me in my troubles about my divorce and the custody of my children. Don't discredit any reports you hear about blackmailing Boston lawyers.

"There are more who practice that miserable trade than these whose names have been mentioned in the papers. For the peace of mind of poor victims of such schemes, like myself, I would enjoy to see the Boston American publish the names of every one of them."

Mrs. Flanagan is awaiting a new trial of her case, due in about a month, when new evidence will be presented and her counsel, Peter Hubband's divorce suit re-heard. In the meantime she explains the details of what she alleges was a plot arranged to falsely incriminate her.

"The whole workings of these 'frame up gangs' were revealed to me in a most extraordinary way recently," she said. "I was at my lawyer's when, weary with all the trouble I have had, I became suddenly ill and nearly fainted. The store man helped me to a chair in his office, and I had to explain.

MADE HER DIZZY.

"I've had so much trouble," I told him, "it just makes me dizzy." He found out my name. When he heard it, his hands went up in surprise. 'Good heavens!' said he. Then I learned.

"A woman was in my store just a few days ago," he explained, 'and she joined as defendants in the divorce action of the former president of the National City Bank against his wife, Fifi Potter Stillman.

"The court order is returnable before Justice Morschauer in White Plains, N. Y., Oct. 21. It was obtained by John E. Mack, temporary guardian of baby Guy Stillman, and its purpose is to protect the child in his direct and potential sharing in the $37,394,009 estate of the late James Stillman.

"The larger part of this goes to lineal descendants of James A. Stillman, in equal shares. Should baby Guy's legitimacy be shown, he will inherit almost one quarter of the original estate.

LOVED DR. FLANAGAN.

"When I married Dr. Flanagan, out West, there was nothing I would not do for him; no lengths I would not go for him, because I loved him and believed in him so very much. We came East. He was not registered in this State, and could not make money at his profession, till he got established.

"We had nothing. So I—and this was four and a half months before my first baby was born, just took my courage in both hands, and went out to work as a saleswoman, and brought back to our home, every night, the two dollars I made each day.

"That kept us going—somehow—till he got on his feet. I did that gladly, a labor of love. And now—the man for whom I did that, has allowed his wife to be 'framed,' and her children to be left in the care of a woman who insults her whenever she goes to see them.

"All I can say is that it's a long lane that has no turn. I love my babies. I—their mother—can care for them better than any woman who brings them up to hate me.

"I am saving my money, and working here very hard, to establish a trade, and to get the self-support which shall convince the court that I am able to provide and fit to shape the future of my own blessed babes.

MRS. HAGGIN SUED FOR MILLINER'S BILL

Mrs. Ben Ali Haggin, formerly Bonnie Glass, cabaret performer, and before that Helen Roche of Roxbury, is in the courts again. Mrs. Haggin has been sued for $176.94 in the New York courts by her milliner. Georgy M. Curtis, Jr., counsel for the milliner, charges Mrs. Haggin paid her bills regularly until early in the present year, since which time her creditor has not seen her. Mrs. Haggin will defend the suit in the Supreme Court of New York, in which State she has for years made her home with her husband, a millionaire artist.

Fire Fighting, Dancing, Fountains of Youth, Says John R. Murphy

Artist Harmony Sees Likeness to Theodore Roosevelt in Forceful Candidate for Mayor's Seat at Boston City Hall.

By HENRY HARMONY

If you want to run for mayor of a big city when you are 65 years old, keep right on dancing and fighting fires.

The two things are regular fountains of youth, and have the fabled spring that Ponce De Leon looked for so longingly in Florida, backed off the boards for the real results.

Such, at least is the belief of John R. Murphy, fire commissioner and candidate for mayor of this fair city. He is perfectly willing to fight for his theory too, being a fighting man by instinct, training and profession.

When I met Murphy for the first time I had been sent to sketch him for the Boston American, but I was so fascinated by the sip—the virile—the "pep" of the man that I came near forgetting what I had come to do.

EATS UP WORK

Work? He fairly eats it up. While I was trying to get him to sit still long enough to catch a good pose, he was attending to a score of things connected with the office of fire commissioner and the job of being candidate for mayor, two pretty strenuous tasks, if I am any judge.

He says he is sixty-five, but he does not look it, nor does he talk it. His voice is more like that of an undergraduate at some good college. There is a sort of blitheseme quality about it that one cannot help liking.

His mouth and the iron gray of his hair attracted my attention, too. They both reminded me so much of the late Theodore Roosevelt when I saw him after his return from South America. There is a difference, though. At that time Teddy was ill and couldn't eat. There is no sign of poor health about Mr. Murphy. He is too vital for that, I almost said TURBULENT, but that's too vivid.

He has some of the mannerisms of his late former President also. There is a directness about his hand-grip like Teddy's. It grips your heart at the same time that it grips your palm.

He also has the same trick of appearing to squint his eyes when he looks at you intently. This is probably because both men suffered from poor vision.

PREPERS ACTION TO WORDS.

I also noticed another similarity between the fire commissioner and the former President. Both of them are doers of men who are actuated by nature. That may sound funny when one remembers the enormous amount of talking Roosevelt did as a public speaker, and to those who know John R. Murphy.

But Murphy is that both those men preferred action to words, and that they preferred to do, rather than say something to say that needs saying.

Murphy is not a large man—medium size I should say, but somehow he seems to fill any room. It is the personality of the man, I suppose.

Win, lose or draw, to use the sporting phrase, the rivals of John R. Murphy in this race for the office of chief executive of Boston are going to know that they have been in a race when it is all over. Watch him. He's worth it.

ENORMOUS RECEIPTS OF FISH FOR BOSTON

More than three quarters of a million pounds of fresh fish arrived at the Boston fish pier today, making upwards of two million pounds receipts for yesterday and today. As was the case yesterday only the finest and most desirable of the big catches were disposed of to fresh fish distributors on the pier, and these at low prices. The balance was taken to Gloucester for splitting and salting. The best haddock sold for 3 cents a pound, and from that down as low as 1 cents. Other fish sold at proportional prices.

FIRE COMMISSIONER JOHN R. MURPHY

HUSBAND SAYS HE WILL 'BREAK' HARTNETT

William J. Hartnett, one of those who with Attorneys William J. Corcoran and William J. Kelly, figured conspicuously in the blackmail plot by which Victor Albert Searles was victimized and bilked out of $50,000, has been made the defendant in an attachment of affections suit filed in the Federal District court by Myron A. Groome, of Binghamton, N. Y.

"I have the goods on Hartnett," Groome declared to the landlady of the Back Bay apartment where his wife, known in Society as Eleanor Barnes, stayed for a time last Summer.

"I can break him and I shall. He cannot steal my wife and get away with it."

WOULD FORGIVE WIFE.

Grooms visited the apartment Sunday and intimated that he was willing to take back his wife if she wished and forgive all.

Eleanor Barnes Hartnett induced Mrs. Grooms to leave her home and enter the notorious "blackmail rink," of which Barnes is a central figure.

The suit for the first time reveals the true identity of the woman who, under the name of Eleanor Barnes, has been active with Hartnett and his associates in various shakedowns throughout the city. Miss Barnes is named by Grooms as his wife, Mrs. Marion Groome.

William H. Garland is attorney for Mrs. Groome. Today Mr. Garland said: "Let Hartnett tell Groome where his wife is. He knows; let him tell."

Grooms charges that Hartnett has been a frequent visitor to Miss Barnes in Boston for four months; that he has used her for blackmailing purposes, and that he has continually supplied her with money.

Mrs. Groome, or Eleanor Barnes, was with Blanche Paul, the principal tool used by Harntnett, Kelly and Corcoran in the frame-up that caused young Searles to be mulcted of $50,000.

The two women induced Searles and his secretary to visit their apartment in the Back Bay for a "birthday party." As the party reached its height, three "private detectives" broke into the room. Later Searles went to see Attorney Corcoran.

Subsequent to the Searles frame-up, Miss Paul and Groome' wife had been staying in an apartment at No. 76 Astor street. A few weeks ago, however, they disappeared, and since that time investigators have been unable to locate them. Grooms charges, however, that Hartnett is fully aware of their whereabouts.

Hartnett induced Mrs. Grooms to leave her home on June 14 of this year, Grooms charges. The inducement offered in the original letter, he continued, was a promise to give her some clothes she had left in Boston on a previous visit. Leaving the Binghamton home, charges the husband, Mrs. Grooms went to New York, where she and Hartnett occupied a hotel room together.

HARTNETT CHARGES PLOT.

When asked for a statement today Hartnett said: "It is nothing but a conspiracy to ruin me. A conspiracy backed by as foul a crowd as ever polluted the city.

"Any future statement will have to come from my counsel," he added.

"I have not selected my counsel but he will be a man of the highest integrity, and of the most unimpeachable character, a man whom they will be unable to attack."

ASSISTANT TO WEEKS FINDS ARMY READY

Assistant Secretary of War J. Mayhew Wainwright visited the headquarters of the First Corps Area today, investigating the purchasing agencies of the army and looking over the sales. Incidentally he asked questions of the officers of the quartermaster corps about supplies in the event of a railroad strike.

He was closeted for some time with Major-General C. R. Edwards, Colonel Hugh Gallagher, depot quartermaster, and Colonel H. G. Learnard, chief of staff.

The army is prepared to carry its supplies and has in storage food which it can sell at reduced prices during an emergency.

The army has in this corps area 109 auto trucks, which can be used all through New England in delivering food and other commodities.

Camp Devens has twenty-four trucks; the South Boston garage eighteen, Fort Ethan Allen thirty-three and there are about four each in every post and camp of New England.

MEN HELD AFTER GIRL'S FALL ARE RELEASED

Judge Fails to Find Evidence of Attack on Back Bay Music Student

Hearing in the Roxbury District Court today failed to throw any fresh light on the mysterious circumstances surrounding the fall of Miss Ethel Suteris from her fourth-story room window to the court yard of her boarding house at No. 564 Newbury street, yesterday morning.

Professor Alfred H. Lythgoe, Miss Sutoris' music teacher and landlord, and Raymond Ricaldi, a fellow student of the girl, of the same address, were in court on a charge preferred by the police, of attempted assault, in connection with the mystery.

But Judge Hayden, after listening to the testimony in the case, refused to issue a warrant against them, saying he found no evidence to link them with the affair.

The girl's father, Ford Sutoris of No. 447 Fort Washington street, New York city, watched the court proceedings. He came here last night after receiving word of the injury to his daughter. He told the court that the girl is of an excessively nervous temperament, and highly excitable.

Miss Sutoris was X-rayed today at the City Hospital, where she was taken following her fall, and it was later announced that the examination showed there are no bones broken. She is still in a precarious condition, however, and unable to recall any of the details connected with events immediately preceding her drop.

On Sunday she and Ricaldo and the teacher went auto riding. Lythgoe left the two pupils at the home of an Italian doctor and they went on to the Newbury street house, which is kept as a boarding place for pupils by the professor, as well as a studio.

From this point the girl's story is confused. She remembers, she says, going to her room after Lythgoe rejoining the door and beginning dressing.

As she was doing so she heard loud voices and the voice of Ricaldo shouting. "I'll not let you go up there! You shall not!"

Then came sounds of trampling and struggle and she says she feared for her honor. At the door she dragged her heavy trunk against the door of the room and began dressing herself. The noises continued and she went to the window to pray.

It was the last she had her seat on the sill, still praying. Then came oblivion. The next conscious thought was when she woke in the hospital swathed in bandages, her body racked in pain.

Attleboro Victim Picks Out Pair from Spectators in Dedham Court

James L. Cassidy of No. 194 Bank street, Attleboro, today picked out from among the spectators in the Dedham District Court two men who, he declared, were among five who held up him and a companion, Clarence L. Macomber, of No. 350 High street, on Wild Cat Hill, between Norwood and Walpole, early today.

The men, who said they were Harrington J. Dillon, twenty years old, of No. 13 Ashford street, Allston, and John Walsh, twenty-eight years old, of No. 24 Mercier street, South Boston, pleaded not guilty, but Judge Clifford H. Sanborn held them in $5,000 each for a hearing October 27.

A touring car taken by the Norwood police was identified by Cassidy as his machine.

Cassidy and Macomber were returning to Attleboro when a roadster with five men in it cut them off. The men, with drawn revolvers, demanded they surrender and fled with the roadster.

SOCIETY COMMENT BY BETTY ALDEN

Engagement of Miss Eleanor Higginson Is Announced

MISS ROSAMAND ADIE

Miss Adie of Chestnut Hill is an ardent sportswoman and prominent society girl. Miss Adie was among the contingent of Boston girls who went to Labrador where they worked at Dr. Grenfell's mission.

THE announcement of any engagement in the Higginson family would naturally cause varied and pronounced flutters of interest among Boston's "four hundred," and all the betrothal announcement of Miss Eleanor Higginson to George Lyman, Jr., prove an exception to the rule.

Miss Higginson, who made her debut in 1917, is a member of the Junior League, the Sewing Circle and the Vincent Club, and is, of course, well-known among the younger set. During the war, however, a host of others besides those of the charmed inner circles knew Miss Higginson as one of the busiest workers on the New England Women's Liberty Loan Committee, of which her mother, Mrs. Francis Lee Higginson, was chairman. Working with her sister was Corina Higginson, a member of the 1918 Sewing Circle.

At present the Higginsons, whose Winter home is at No. 274 Beacon street, are at "Old Fort," their Pride's Crossing villa on the North Shore. Eleanor and Corina recently returning from a camping trip in Wyoming, where they had a gorgeous time with several other Bostonians.

George Lyman, Jr., her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Lyman of No. 351 Commonwealth avenue, is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1916, and during his college career he was a member of the Institute of 1770, D. K. E., the Hasty Pudding and Spree clubs. He also holds memberships in the Somerset and Tennis and Racquet clubs. Mr. Lyman served as first lieutenant in the 101st Infantry, 26th Division.

At a recent meeting of the Junior League a number of the associate "subs" were elected to professional membership, which means that they are given a year in which to do some real work for the organization and thereby become real members. At present they are "on probation," as it were.

The list includes: Mary Barlow, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Howard Key Bartow of Cohasset; Annie N. Cabot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Cabot of No. 325 Heath street, Chestnut Hill; Barbara E. Churchill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Asaph Churchill, No. 247 Adams street, Milton; Elizabeth Cole, of Bay State road; Katherine Coolidge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Coolidge of No. 317 Beacon street; Miss Jeannie Dupee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Dupee of No. 80 Marlboro street; Lucy Fiske, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Redington Fiske of Webster street, Needham; Ellen Greenough, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert B. Greenough of No. 166 Ivy street, Brookline; Mary S. Hallowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Hallowell, Brush Hill road, Readville; Eleanor Hamellian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman P. Hasseltine, No. 8 Walnut street; Virginia Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George V. Harris, Lee street, Brookline; Mary James, daughter of Professor and Mrs. Edward H. James of No. 46 Mt. Vernon street; Amy Lee, daughter of Mr. Joseph Lee of No. 95 Mt. Vernon street; Marion Morse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morse of Chestnut Hill; Edith Nichols, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward G. Nichols of No. 294 Marlboro street; Eleanor Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip S. Parker of 176 Mountfort street, Brookline; Margaret Porter, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Porter of No. 114 Beacon street; Margaret W. Rollins, daughter of Mrs. Montgomery Rollins of No. 481 Hammond street, Chestnut Hill; Jeanette Sabine, daughter of Mrs. Wallace Sabine of No. 348 Marlboro street; Helen L. Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Scott of Wellesley; Elizabeth Towle, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harvey Towle of No. 463 Marlboro street.

4-WEEK SUPPLY OF PROVISIONS AVAILABLE

Washington, Oct. 18. — Perishable food supply heaps in the United States will stave off famine of butter, eggs, poultry and cheese for four weeks in the event of a nation-wide railway tie-up, according to market figures compiled today by the Bureau of Markets of the Department of Agriculture here.

By a fortunate dove-tailing of dates, the date set for the walkout of railway employes marks the last day of heavy transcontinental traffic in potatoes, apples, vegetables and poultry. Twenty-four thousand carloads of these foodstuffs have been and will continue to be moved daily until Oct. 26, when the movement will be curtailed by half for the winter months.

Milk would be the first commodity affected by the strike. Some relief might be expected from the rapid growth of the milk truck traffic.

Market reports on perishable foodstuffs for the week ending October 1 afford a safe premise from which to deduct the average length of time that the five great market centres could hold out against the demand for perishable foods. The five great market centres of America are Boston, New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and San Francisco. These cities consume an average total of 12,000,000 pounds of butter, 400,000 cases of eggs, 6,500,000 pounds of dressed poultry and 6,000,000 pounds of cheese a week.

HARVARD BOYS CAN'T BE KEPT FROM GAME

The railroad strike will not inconvenience the Harvard students if they take time by the forelock as advised by the Harvard Crimson in order to attend the football game at Princeton, November 5. The editorial says:

"Many a flyver that has never rattled on any highway beyond walking distance of Cambridge will find itself drawn into the stream of vehicles headed westward. [illegible] will reserve our favorite Boston taxi, and auction off cubic feet of space in it to the highest bidder as long as there is space left. Others have already orders our town cars to be honed up and shipped before the freight trains stop running.

But we'll be there, one and all—whether by ox-cart or dirigible, by camel or the Boston Elevated."

Embarrassing Hairs Can be Quickly Removed

To avoid disappointment, buy the delatone in an original package and mix fresh.—Advertisement.

TREMONT TRUST IS ENJOINED BY COURT

Collection on $7,500 Note Given by Chapman and Already Paid, Is Stopped

In the supreme equity court, Justice Braley found for the plaintiff in the bill brought by E. B. Chapman against the Tremont Trust Company, asking that the trust company be enjoined from collecting on a note for $7,500 which he gave the trust company and later paid. Judge Braley has enjoined the trust company from collecting.

During the hearing Benjamin Swig, treasurer of the closed Trust Company, admitted on the witness stand that he carried the note as an asset of the bank, although he knew the note had been paid and could not again be collected.

Chapman told the court that on December 19, 1918, at the request of Benjamin Swig, he signed a note for $7,500 and was told by Swig at the time that the transaction was only on paper and he would never have to pay the note.

Chapman said he later gave his check for the amount, in order that the note would not be outstanding against him.

According to the testimony the check was deposited to the profit and loss account of the bank, to take care of other accounts which could not be collected.

Later Chapman asked the bank officials for his cancelled note, and according to his testimony, he was told the note had been lost, although he had been credited with making the payment and would not have to pay it again.

When Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen closed the bank, the Chapman note was found among the assets of the bank and W. Rodman Peabody, liquidating agent, was to start proceedings to collect, when Chapman headed off the proceedings by bringing the bill in equity.

YOUTH AND GIRL HELD IN SERIES OF ROBBERIES

Couple Arrested in South End Room Which Contained $2,500 in Loot

With the arrests of George Hogarty, twenty, and Ruth Gilmer, twenty-one, living in a house on West Newton street, South End, the police believe the mystery of a series of robberies in Boston has been solved.

Hogarty, the police say, admitted numerous breaks in the Back Bay, Roxbury and the city proper. To corroborate his confession he accompanied the police on an auto tour and pointed out eight places in the Back Bay and two in Roxbury which, he said, he burglarized.

Loot valued at $2,300 was found in their room. The police raided their lodging house as a result of an anonymous letter.

The girl was in bed and Hogarty was in scant attire when the officers entered the room. Hogarty made a dash for the door, but stopped when he saw a squad of bluecoats. The pair posed as brother and sister at the lodging house.

As Hogarty was being led to a cell he turned to the girl and said: "Ruth, I want you to be true to me while I'm in jail."

The girl is charged with receiving stolen goods. Hogarty was booked on charges of breaking and entering and larceny.

RELATIVES FIND GIRL LOST FOR 14 YEARS

Boston American Ad Results in Mabel Miller Visiting Clinton

Clinton, Oct. 18.—An advertisement placed in the Boston American a few days ago has located Miss Mabel Miller, twenty-two years old, in Portland, Me., after she had been lost to members of her family for fourteen years. She participated today in a reunion with her relatives at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Joseph Perreault, No. 161 Sterling street, in this city.

Prior to her return to Portland, Miss Miller will visit another aunt, Miss Nora McHugh, in Worcester, and receive through her a legacy left by her mother, at the time of the latter's death, when the girl was but three years of age.

ACCOUNT STARTED AT BIRTH.

The money, in the form of a savings bank account, was placed in the bank to the credit of the girl at the time of her birth by her mother. When Mrs. Nora Miller died in Rhode Island, she gave the bank book into the custody of her Worcester sister to be kept for the daughter until she became of age.

Miss Miller was lost to her relatives when she was taken by her father to Boston, following the death of the mother. Later the father disappeared and is supposed to be dead. The daughter drifted to Portland where she has been living for some years.

While Miss Miller knew that she had relatives living in Worcester and Clinton, she did not know their names, and several attempts made to locate them have been fruitless.

LOCATED THROUGH AD.

Local relatives have also made many fruitless trips to Boston and other New England cities in the hope of locating the girl, and their efforts have redoubled since the young woman became of age, in order that her mother's gift might be tendered to her.

The advertisement in the American was placed by her cousin, Miss Eva Perreault.

Charlie Chaplin to Try Versatility in Real Drama

By Universal Service.

New York, Oct. 18.—Charlie Chaplin came back to America from England with a new idea. He will make only two more comedy pictures, he announced, and then will try his versatility in a real tragedy drama.

Aside from saying that "Fatty" Arbuckle's troubles had injured the motion picture business, the famous comedian would not discuss the case. He had much to say, however, of his "wonderful reception" in England. It was his first visit there in ten years.

The film comedian was asked if he had seen any young ladies he liked abroad. But he replied he had not given them much thought. He contented himself with comparisons.

"The English girls are more subtle," he said, "while the French are more obvious."

DRIVER OF DEATH CAR WILL BE ARRESTED

Fled After Killing Wellesley Student While Swerving to Avoid Collision

Arrest of the driver of an auto which late yesterday ran down and killed Miss Margaret Preston, twenty-five years old, of No. 17 Cushing street, Providence, R. I., and a special student at Wellesley College, as she was crossing Centre street, Wellesley, is expected today, according to Chief of Police Kingsbury.

The body of the woman was at the College Infirmary today, waiting for the coming of Medical Examiner Hodgdon.

The operator of the automobile did not stop, but continued on his flight down the street, Miss Preston, who was returning to her rooms from a "gym" session, was hurled to the pavement. Her skull was fractured.

According to witnesses of the accident the automobile swerved to avoid striking another car and crashed into the bicycle Miss Preston was riding.

Miss Preston was taking a special hygiene course at the college and was rooming at No. 8 Wabon street. She was a graduate of Brown. Her father is a well-known Providence book seller, and she is said to have won scholastic honors at Brown. In addition to being an accomplished musician she was noted for her athletic prowess.

Doctor at 82 Finds Mothers Prefer His Formula to New-Fangled Salts And Coal Tar Remedies for Babies

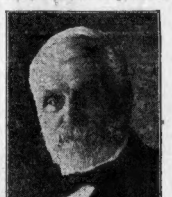
Judgment of 1892 vindicated by world's approval of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a simple vegetable compound for constipation—So safe thousands give it to babes in arms—Now has largest sale in the world.

WHEN a man is in the 83rd year of his age, as I am, there are certain things he has learned that only time can teach him. The basis of treating sickness has not changed since I left Medical College in 1875, nor since I placed on the market the laxative prescription I had used in my practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of my Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of Egyptian Senna and other mild laxative herbs with pepsin.

Recently new medicines have been brought out for constipation that contain calomel, which is mercury, salts of various kinds, minerals, and coal tar. These are all drastic purges, many of them dangerous, and the medical profession

$10,000 Worth of Syrup Pepsin Free



From a recent portrait of DR. W. B. CALDWELL, Founder of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin Born Shelbyville, Mo., 1839

In remembrance of my 83rd birthday I have set aside the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars to be given away in half-ounce bottles of my Syrup Pepsin. Only one Free Trial bottle to a family. All are constipated now and then, and here is an opportunity for you and others to try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin FREE OF CHARGE. Ask for your free bottle today, simply sending name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 514 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Do not postpone this.

is warning the public against them. Certain coal tar products will depress the heart; certain salts give rise to intestinal poisoning, impaction and rupture of the intestines. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with pills and powders and strong drugs, even if disguised in candy? My remedy, too, costs less than most others, only about a cent a dose. A bottle such as you can find in any drug store, will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the babe in arms because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In the proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal.

The formula of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is on the cover of every bottle, and the ingredients have the endorsement of the U. S. Pharmacopoeia.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST SUNDAY NEWSPAPER

$140,000 PAID BY SEARLES TO DIVORCED WIFE

Latter Is All Through With Millionaire Artist and Glad She Is Free

Another big slice has just been taken from the fortune of Albert Victor Searles, millionaire Boston artist, who sprang into the limelight when he was "shaken down" for $50,000 when trapped in a Back Bay apartment over a year ago.

The amount paid out this time by the millionaire artist is reported to be $140,000. It is the sum that he has paid to his divorced wife, Mrs. Etta Searles, in final settlement following the divorce which she secured from Searles.

The divorce became absolute and the money was paid over to Mrs. Searles last Saturday, the Boston American has just learned.

Following the granting of the divorce six months ago Mrs. Searles took up her residence in a suburb of Boston and has been living there all summer.

Last Saturday she went to Providence, where the settlement was made, and she received her money.

When seen by a Boston American reporter today Mrs. Searles said:

"I've got what is coming to me and I am happy. Victor is all right, only he is foolish at times, and I am glad it is all over and I am free," said Mrs. Searles. "I am going to enjoy myself now, and I am all through with Victor."

With that she left in her automobile for a trip through the Berkshires.

Mrs. Searles married Searles in Providence and for a time their married life was rosy and serene. But, according to Mrs. Searles, another woman entered Victor's life and the troubles started.

Searles started divorce proceedings against his wife and was unsuccessful and then she secured her divorce from him.

Magrath Plans Searles' Autopsy

Lawrence, Oct. 18.—According to District Attorney S. Howard Donnell of Essex county, the autopsy on the body of Edward F. Searles will be performed in Boston at a date to be announced this week. This arrangement was made in a conference with Dr. George B. Magrath.

The probe by medical men will take place in the Grove street morgue, Boston.

District Attorney Donnell was uncertain as to the time the body would be taken from Methuen.It is reported that it will leave Pine Lodge under the cover of night and be immediately taken over the road to Boston.

Dr. Edward A. Ganley of Methuen will represent the Methuen Board of Health at the autopsy.

Fresh From Paris

Latest Word From Marie Suzanne

Paris, France.

FOR daytime street wear Paris suggests a three-piece tailleur as smart as it is serviceable, and a trim little velvet hat. The model sketches at the left, of slate blue velours, is loose and moderately short of coat, having blouse and coat collar attractively trimmed with narrow black cire braid. Strips of the velours, intended to tie the collar, also have the braid applied from end to end. There are three useful pockets—braid trimmed, and two buttons intended only to amuse!

For slightly more formal occasions, the gown worn with a wrap of fur is endorsed by Paris. Black duvetyn collared and girdled in black moire and ever so lightly touched with silver appears to advantage beneath a short cape of black caracul. The bodice has a gilet of black net traced with silver, which is a modish alternative to the "Jaiseu" neckline, and the long sleeves are of net similarly treated. Loops of braid on the cape fasten about a row of small jet buttons.

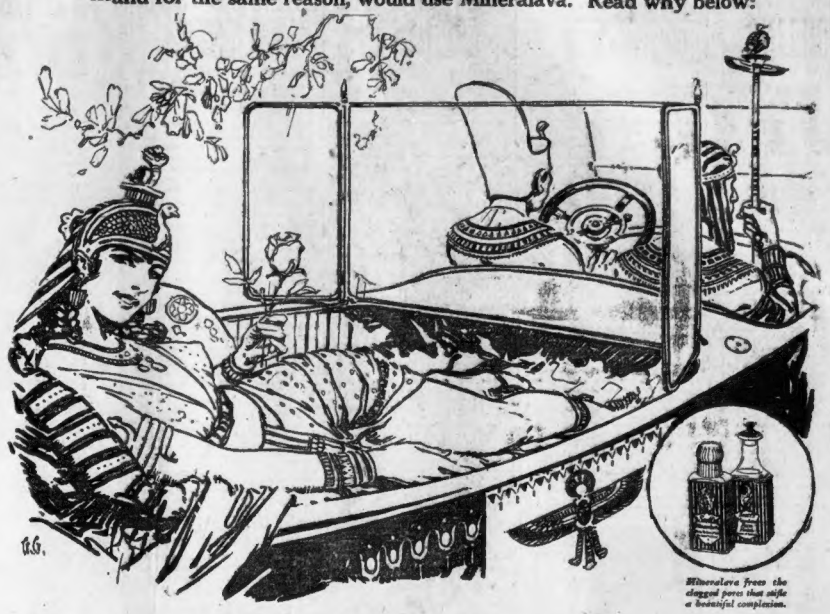
Cleopatra Would Ride in a Car To-day

---and for the same reason, would use Mineralava. Read why below:



Mineralava frees the clogged pores that stifle a beautiful complexion.

By VERNON RADCLIFFE

CLEOPATRA, the beautiful, the magnificent, would never be satisfied with ancient Egyptian methods of conveyance, were she privileged to live to-day. In place of her chariot, she would speed in a car. In place of her famous barge with chanting slaves, she would own a yacht. And is there any reason to suppose that she would continue the use of ancient soaps, creams and lotions for the complexion, when modern life offers something so much better?

The Menace of Fading Beauty

The life to-day of trains and motor cars and dusty city streets is different from the indolent age of Cleopatra. To-day, the trains roar back and forth into the cities, belching smoke and dust. The streets throb continuously from the exhausts of jamming motor cars. The factories send up clouds of sooty vapor which seep down in gritty particles. All this dirt and dust becomes a part of the complexion, forcing itself deep down into the pores.

It is these impurities lodged at the very bottom of the pores, which cause practically all complexion blemishes—blackheads, dry skin, enlarged pores, oily skin, pimples and sallowness.

The care of the complexion has become increasingly necessary, increasingly hard. Beauty has been fading earlier and earlier.

Your Skin Must Breathe

A skin cannot be healthy, a complexion cannot be beautiful, if clogged pores do not permit the skin to breathe, to eliminate, to throw off impurities. When these pores are free and functioning, the complexion has a natural glow. When they are clogged, fermentation sets in, the face sinks into sallowness, and wrinkles and blemishes. With all the lotions that you put on, is there any assurance of this foreign matter coming out—that tired Nature can expel the added burden in the pores?

Yet these impurities must come out. Nothing put on the face can possibly be of benefit if the pores beneath are clogged, and to-day they are clogged as they never were before.

Women have turned in desperation to massage, the vigorous action of human hands.

Old Treatments Fail

Unscientific facial massage has made more old women than age. Under guise of a benefit it is a wholesale destroyer of beauty. To parboil your skin with half scalding water, and knead and maul the muscles of your face is bound to be injurious. A minute's thought will tell you so. It stands to reason that it breaks down tissue. Massaging will not even cleanse properly, that is down to the bottom of the pores. It merely slicks off the surface. It does not remove dirt, foreign substances and impurities from the place where they do the real damage—down below the surface of the skin. Your Beauty Specialist will tell you so.

Vivaudou's Discovery

Very recent has been the complete change in beauty method by the best specialists and parlors. Victor Vivaudou, famous perfumer, discovered that the best Beauty Shops in this country were using a preparation so wonderful and immediate in its effects upon the complexion, that he arranged for its sole distribution in the home. He says, "Here in America, I have found the one thing which ladies in Paris and all over the world have yearned for—a care of the complexion which is at once natural, convenient and successful—MINERALAVA.

"I have seen its amazing benefits—its amazing success. It is delightful to use. No more wonderful contribution to comfort and cleanliness has ever been devised!"

Answers Modern Needs

Mineralava is the one way to a good complexion—the only way—so startling, so revolutionary in idea, so different from any treatment that you have known that you cannot afford not to know it—to try it.

Instead of being just one more thing to put on the face, to rub in the face, adding to the accumulation of grease and impurities in the pores, Mineralava takes out. It cleanses the clogged pores—washes off—and is gone, all in twelve minutes.

What Mineralava Does

Mineralava, Nature's Beauty Clay, originated by Mrs. M. G. Scott and perfected by her through 23 years of scientific research and experiment, is applied wet to the face, neck and hands, and accomplishes two important results—impossible with other preparations. It draws impurities from the pores and it tightens sagging muscles.

As it dries it contracts, and you can feel its medicinal ingredients penetrating the depths of the pores. You can feel it withdrawing all foreign matter, leaving the pores free and clean.

You can feel the wrinkles being smoothed out. You can feel the flabby skin being made tight and firm. You can feel the cleansing purifying blood tingling through each tiny vein. When Mineralava is thoroughly dry, cold water easily removes it.

Mineralava, Cold Water, Face Finish

Immediately, a blooming youthfulness glows and radiates from the cheeks. The long stifled face pores breathe again.

Mineralava Face Finish is a necessary skin food and tonic, acts as a mild bleach and forms a perfect base for your face powder. It has amazing benefit because you can apply it at the proper time, after the pores are cleansed.

Lasting results follow from the use of Mineralava, the cleanser, Cold Water, the invigorant, and Face Finish, the food—in combination.

Lasting Beauty of Complexion

Continue this treatment twice a week and we guarantee, whether you are sixteen or sixty, a beautiful complexion as long as you live—free from blackheads, pimples, enlarged pores, wrinkles, blemishes of all kinds—striking in its beauty and youthfulness.

MELODRAMA AT OPERA HOUSE THRILLING

"In the Night Watch" Offers Marvelous Stage Effects and Good Acting

By FRED J. McISAAC
Dramatic Editor

"In the Night Watch," a big French melodrama which has reached us via London and then been prepared for American consumption by Michael Morton, began an engagement at the Boston Opera House last night.

Robert Warwick, film star, and Olive Tell, ditto, head the big company. Originally there were three other stars in the cast, but they must have been treading on each other's toes, for there are only two big parts in the piece, and they are in the garage now.

This drama occurs mostly on board a French cruiser the night that war was declared. Nobody but a French dramatist would have ingenuity enough to pull an intrigue on board a warship while a battle was going on, and nobody but an American adapter of a French drama would keep the lady who indulged in a party of this sort pure and spotless.

"BATTLE AT SEA."

The gentleman who designed the scenic effects deserves all the prizes which are awarded to "In the Night Watch," because he has managed to show a battle between two warships at sea with extraordinary vividness, and also invented a contraption by which a huge ship sinks in full view of the audience, which will undoubtedly be all right after they have court-martialled the stage manager or the light man or whoever was responsible for the way it was done last night.

Instead they court-martial the captain of the ship, who certainly got a rough deal, because he fought his ship to the complete satisfaction of everybody out front, and got wounded, and had a wife carrying on downstairs in one of the under officers' staterooms.

FRENCH DRAMATISTS WIN.

You've got to hand it to the French dramatists. Do you suppose an American or a British playwright would stage a naval battle and sink his own ship. That's what happens in "In the Night Watch."

And then that court martial. The Gallic playwright fixes it so that everybody who saw the exchange of signals and knew that the German ship had the French secret code, thus getting close enough to torpedo our hero, should be drowned except the captain and one officer, who was his enemy and denied seeing the signals. Accordingly Olive Tell had to come in and give herself away before an entire naval court containing enormous quantities of gold lace, but not near enough whiskers for the French navy.

And the poor old captain had to forgive her and stagger off with her because she saved his honor at the expense of hers. But what he probably said when he got her home!

WARWICK TOO AMERICAN.

Robert Warwick is a sufficiently manly, but altogether too American, captain. That's the trouble with the whole cast. They wear French uniforms, but they aren't any more French than the table d'hote at a Boston hotel. In the last act Mr. Warwick is virile, but much too melodramatic. Similarly, he shall we say, in the battle scene it was quite exciting to hear him yell. He yelled louder than the cannons roared.

Olive Tell is a very pretty girl and she did a nice bit of acting in the final scene when she told a French court that, though she was in the other man's room, she was innocent. That goes all right in American melodrama, but can you imagine it being offered to an audience of French?

Harold de Becker, as Le Due, a sailor, was amusing, if you could excuse his looking French and talking pure Cockney.

The rest of the cast was all right, but not enough whiskers. One hair mattress would help that show a lot.

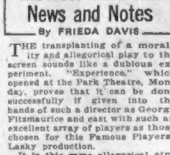
MOTION PICTURE News and Notes

By FRIEDA DAVIS

THE transplanting of a morality and allegorical play to the screen sounds like a dubious experiment. "Experience," which opened at the Park Theatre, Monday, proves that it can be done successfully if given into the hands of such a director as George Fitzmaurice and cast with such an excellent array of players as those chosen for this Famous Players-Lasky production.

It is this same allegorical strain throughout the film that holds one's interest; it is the conflict of good and evil personified by particularly human and convincing persons. Otherwise 'Experience' is not far different from the old story of the country youth who comes to the big city to make his fortune. There he falls under the influence of the white lights and goes down deeper and deeper until he is very nearly as low as it is possible for anyone to go.



Given a gripping story like that, Richard Barthelmess as Youth, and a director like George Fitzmaurice it is not unreasonable to suppose that the result would be as remarkable as is the finished picture. It points a moral, but is in no way preachy or objectionable in doing it. Fitzmaurice has given us a series of strong scenes as well as unusual ones in regard lighting, setting and action. Waldemar Young has written a convincing and consecutive scenario.

Barthelmess has given us a splendid characterization in Youth. He handles his role with feeling and artistry, showing throughout that he has the idea behind his acts.

John Miltern plays the role of the accompanying Experience with a repose that makes one conscious of his presence but without intruding his personality on all that goes on, thereby preserving the illusion of his past. One wonders why he disappears from Youth's side during a number of the scenes toward the end, particularly when Youth would most need him. It is possible that this happened in the editing and cutting of the film.

Marjorie Daw, long favored from Marshall Neilan's pictures for the occasion, is seen as Love. In the lighter scenes she is good, but fails to come up to the required height for the emotional scenes.

"ROSE GIRL" IS TUNEFUL AT WILBUR

"The Rose Girl," a musical play by William Cary Duncan and Louis Simon, holds the boards at the Wilbur Theatre this week, opening last night before a typical audience of admirers of tuneful comedy.

As in the usual run of such pieces there is little to the play but music, girls and now and then a laugh. The plot of the play is negligible, but nowadays plots and musical comedies do not seem to agree. But wilbai the piece is amusing and in the musical comedy admirer—satisfying.

The co-stars of "The Rose Girl" are Fred Hillebrand and Marguerite Lamare. The former, with his six feet, four—mostly legs—is well known to Boston audiences. He is as eccentric as ever and his rough and tumble dancing and his poetical chatter produce the biggest laughs in the show.

Miss Lamare, in the prima donna role, a winsome and captivating young woman, sings excellently. A. Barbour Halliday, as Captain Victor Lagardo, Rosebud's love for whom is the theme of the play, has a voice which blends admirably with that of Miss Lamare.

There are a number of songs in "The Rose Girl" which will be whistled and hummed in Boston long after the play leaves town. This is especially true of "Some Heroes Day," sung by Miss Lamare and Mr. Halliday. It is the piece de resistance of the show.

For a musical play "The Rose Girl" is well stocked with comedians and comediennes. Sarah Edwards, as Madame Donnay, a widow, whose chief charms are her wealth and her protegee, is especially worthy of comment.

"DISRAELI" ON FILM AT THE OLYMPIA

George Arliss in "Disraeli"—"These four words would work magic at Gordon's Olympia Theatre last evening. Throngs that taxed the capacity of the house viewed the presentation and hundreds were turned away.

It was a tribute to Mr. Arliss, the distinguished actor, who by lending his artistry to the screen has conferred a lasting debt upon lovers of motion pictures.

"Disraeli" proved to be Mr. Arliss' greatest stage characterization, and in picture form it is charming to the nth degree. It is true that Mr. Arliss has gone on, to other parts in other plays, but his "Disraeli" has come to be so closely identified with him that the two are almost inseparable. Here is a picture that will be passed down to posterity as a striking example of great acting—and Mr. Arliss made it possible.

'MANON' WELL SUNG AT THE ARLINGTON

Boston Society of Singers Gives Fine Performance of Massenet's Opera

"Manon," this week's offering at the Arlington Theatre by the Boston Society of Singers, was well received by a large audience. This most popular of Massenet's operas found a cast well able to bring out the fine points of the production.

Lois Ewell as Manon was delightful. It is no new role for her. In 1915 Miss Ewell played this part at the Century Theatre. She was the first to sing the role in English.

Norman Arnold, as Chevalier Des Grieux, proved a talented singer. These two stars are supported by a capable cast.

"Manon" is the story of a girl who loves the excitement and gayeties of the big cities. She first falls in love with the youthful Chevalier Des Grieux and proves faithless.

Des Grieux, because of her deception, retires to a monastery and Manon seeks him there seeking a reconciliation. Her craving for money and Des Grieux's inability to supply it drives him to a gambling den where they are arrested.

They are separated, only to meet again on a country road. Manon this time under guard. He greets her and she dies in his arms as the captain falls in the last act.

The Boston Society of Singers has obtained some of the most talented singers in this section of the country to take the leading roles on alternate evenings. Besides Miss Ewell, in the title role, the society will present Helena Morrill and Helen Allyn, while Fulton Robinson will play the role of Des Grieux alternately with Norman Arnold.

Other Theatres

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—The Orpheum Theatre has one of the best bills seen at that popular playhouse this season. Charlie Chaplin, the king of screen comedians, in appearing in the greatest of his million dollar productions, "Shoulder Arms," in which this inimitable and well-liked player cuts all sorts of funny capers. The production is shown in multiple reels. Another big feature is the first Boston showing of "Action," a gripping photodrama with a story of more than ordinary appeal.

MODERN AND BEACON—The admirers of the virile screen portraitures of Thomas Meighan will find in "The Conquest of Canaan," his latest vehicle, which was shown to the finest audiences at the Modern and Beacon Theatres yesterday, an attraction vastly to their liking. "Written by Booth Tarkington, "The Conquest of Canaan" is attractive as it is satisfying. As Jon Louden, Thomas Meighan has a role of sterling worth in which he acquits himself with ability, discernment and taste.

PARK THEATRE—The new Paramount allegorical picture, "Experience," produced by George Fitzmaurice, scored a decisive hit at the Park Theatre yesterday. Setting, story point of story, scenic investiture, costuming and acting, it leaves little to be desired. Richard Barthelmess heads an unusually large and clever cast of players. This is followed by Doris May in "The Foolish Age."

GORDON'S OLD SOUTH—William S. Hart, the virile Paramount star in Western photoplays, scored another triumph when his latest production, "Three-Word Brand," was presented at Gordon's Old South Theatre last night.

SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA—Cecil B. DeMille, perhaps the foremost picture producer in the country, if not the world, displayed his genius at its best in his latest Paramount picture, "The Affairs of Anatol," which was presented with splendid effect at Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia Theatre last night.

WALDRON'S CASINO—Rose Sydell's famous "London Belles" received an enthusiastic welcome from Boston burlesque lovers who crowded Waldron's at matinee and evening performances yesterday. This famous burlesque attraction has been thoroughly revised this year, making it one of the most hilarious and thoroughly enjoyable shows seen here during the present theatrical season.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE — The capable and popular Somerville Players, yesterday, once again came into their own by their splendid presentation of "Nobody's Money," a brilliant comedy from the prolific pen of William Le Baron. This is another tense strike for Manager McArdle, who obtained permission from its producer to present this unqualified success for the first time in stock anywhere in America. Arthur Howard appeared in the leading role.

FRANKLIN PARK THEATRE—Viola Dana, in "The Match Breaker," a story of an anti-vamp. The vaudeville is headed by Bille Shaw and company in "Sunday. Clara Kimball Young will be shown in her latest production, "Eye for Eye."

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—Margaret Anglin began the last fortnight of her stay in Boston at the Plymouth last night.

FOUR MORTONS HEAD GOOD BILL AT KEITH'S

The Four Mortons, Sam, Kitty, Marthe and Joe, head a very entertaining bill at Keith's this week. They are seen in a skit entitled "Wearing Out the Green," and furnish fun in plenty. The act is a laugh producer from start to finish.

Will M. Cressy and Blanche Dayne, always welcome at Keith's, offer Mr. Cressy's latest sketch, "Without a Will-There's a Way." It is a typical Cressy act and has the audience in an uproar at all times.

Patricola renders a varied program with the violin and also sings some pleasing songs.

The Navy Jazz Band, led by
Ensign Al Moore, repeats its former success with a repertoire of selections to suit all lovers of band music.

A Dance Duel, featuring Franges Pritchard, assisted by Edward Tierney and James Donnelly, is a delightful terpsichorean offering.

CECIL LEAN IN NEW ACT AT MAJESTIC

Assisted by Cleo Mayfield Heads Well Balanced Vaudeville Bill

Cecil Lean and Cleo Mayfield, well known musical comedy stars, head a particularly pleasing bill at Shubert's Majestic Theatre this week. This sparkling pair appear in an entirely new act entitled, "Acting Songs," which is admirably done.

Fully as important is Richard Barclett, in William B. Friedlander's latest musical success, "Cave Man's Love," which is based on the eight proposals. Proposals going back through the ages to the cave men are pleasingly done.

Dancing lovers are given a real treat with the high class performance of Olga and Mikka, late feature in "Tickle Me," who specialize in the highest field of the terpsichorean art. Both are finished dancers.

Vivian Holt and Lillian Rosedale, coloratura soprano and mezzo soprano respectively, are delightful in an intimate song recital in which some dainty songs are admirably done.

San Hearn, as Uncle Joe, the fiddling politician, is entertaining, as are the Pickfords, Who give an exhibition of pantomime, comedy, juggling, acrobatics and magic. Other acts include Jock McKay, Scotch comedian; Wilson and Larsen, in a singing, dancing and acrobatic act; Vardai and Perry, who gave more than 400 shows for our soldiers across the sea later, and Avey Brothers, gymnasts. The Shubert weekly news and a Mutt and Jeff comedy complete the bill.

MERRY MELANGE OF BURLESQUE AT GAYETY

"Hello 1922," a merry ,melange of mirth and musical hits was the burlesque attraction that lured capacity audiences to the Gayety Theatre yesterday.

The story of "Hello 1922" is of fascinating interest. There are a number of novel specialities, the settings and costumes are brilliant and original, and the musical score is entrancing.

In the cast are several burlesque artists whose talents have won for them wide fame. Among these artists are Scotty Friedell, Fenna-Marlo, Texas Theresa Adams, Don Trent and May Mack.

Dancing at Arena

The popularity of dancing at the New Boston Arena has caused Manager George V. Brown to defer the opening of the skating season at the big rink until after Thanksgiving Day. Special features have been arranged for the daily dances. New novelties will be introduced in connection with Halloween Night at the Arena.

YEAST BEST WHEN TAKEN WITH IRON

If Weak, Thin or Rundown Try This New Treatment in Tablet Form—Watch the Quick Results.

Everyone has heard of the apparent wonders performed by yeast in restoring health, and why? Because yeast is health. And now it is found that even more surprising results are obtained if yeast is taken with iron, the great blood-maker.

People who for years were weak, pale, anaemic, and all rundown are regaining their strength and health almost as if by magic since this remarkable effective combination of tonics. And the best of it is that you can take this new kind of tablet form—no need to eat yeast cakes, which are so disagreeable to many.

The preparation, in which these two great health builders have been combined is known as Ironized Yeast. This concentrated brewer's yeast tablet is far more powerful than ordinary baker's yeast because it is richer in vitamines, the mysterious element which science has found to be so absolutely essential to health. Due to modern methods, most foods nowadays vitamines are lacking in most of our commonest foods—and that is why so many of us become sickly and run-down.

If you are suffering from loss of strength, if you frequently become exhausted, if your food has no taste for you, or if you are irritable, thin, pale, nervous, or generally run-down, then try this remarkable new tonic.

Ironized Yeast will in most cases bring a decided improvement within three days. It will usually clear up sallow or muddy complexions within ten days. Many everywhere are enthusiastic reports of what it is doing for people.

Yeast is packed in patented, sealed packages and will keep indefinitely. Its cost is no more per dose than common yeast. Each package contains 3 full weeks' treatment and costs only $1.00—just 16c a day. Special directions for children in each package. Sold by the ironized yeast dealer in Atlanta, Ga. For sale at all druggists.

MOTHER DENIES URGING MORTON TO JILT GIRL

Arlington Woman Says Charge of Miss Knight in $20,000 Love Suit is False

"My son may or may not have changed his mind in regard to Miss Knight—I know nothing about that. But neither his father, his sister nor myself had the slightest bit of influence over what he may have done."

In these words Mrs. Edward Morton mother of Stanley Morton of No. 168 Spring street, Arlington, denied the charges made against her by Miss Edith Knight, the Medford girl, who has sued her son for $20,000, alleging breach of promise, and who has named Morton's parents as moving causes in his alleged change of heart.

Neither Stanley Morton, the son, nor Edward Morton, the father, could be located by a reporter for the Boston American who went to the Arlington residence—a farm set on a hill on the edge of the town. But Mrs. Morton was at home, and she vehemently denied that she and her husband urged Morton to forget Miss Knight.

"It seems to me that if I were a young lady who had been jilted by a man, I certainly would not try to force him to come back to me," Mrs. Morton continued. "I wouldn't want to advertise the fact that he had changed his mind about me."

Then Mrs. Morton laughed. "It's hard enough to live with any man, let alone one who has changed his mind about you," she remarked.

Mrs. Morton added that she did not know any of the details of the case, adding that she had never even known whether her son and Miss Knight had ever been engaged. Stanley had been friendly with the girl for several years, she knew, but she insisted that she had never known whether either of the young people ever regarded their acquaintance as anything more than friendship.

Miss Knight asserted in her petition that young Morton had broken an engagement that extended back to their school days. She also charged that his parents and his sister, Ruth Dallin of Quincy, had induced him to do this.

TWO INDICTED BROKERS ARE CLEARED

Pelletier Not Presses the Charges Against Niles and Dabney

District Attorney Pelletier nol prossed the indictment against Alfred S. Dabney and Nathaniel W. Niles, former partners in the brokerage firm of Harnett E. Smith & Company, which has been pending in Suffolk county since July 1.

The indictment alleged in substance that Messrs. Niles and Dabney stole certain stocks and cash, the property of one Emma S. Buttrick.

The indictment was not prossed because the district attorney found, upon examination of the case, that there was no competent evidence to connect these two men with Miss Buttrick.

Last September Mr. Niles pleaded not guilty to the indictment and was arraigned in the Suffolk County Criminal Court and furnished $5,000 bail. More recently, Mr. Dabney returned from California, where he was staying with relatives at the time of the indictment, and voluntarily appeared in the Suffolk County Criminal Court for the purpose of being arraigned and furnished bail.

Samuel Hoar, attorney for Niles and Dabney, when interviewed, said: "The action of District Attorney Pelletier speaks for itself. I am much pleased that my clients are cleared of the charge contained in the indictment without the necessity of a trial."

Schuman-Heink Is Barred From Armory at Pittsfield

Pittsfield, Oct. 18.—Mme. Schuman-Heink was barred from the State armory here, and was obliged to sing at the First Methodist Church, which seats 1,000 less than the armory. This was the result of a rule forbidding the use of the armory for public purposes in the absence of its custodian, Captain Ralph Ods, who is in camp with Co. F.

HAPGOOD SEES RATIFICATION OF TREATY

Speedy Naming of Successor to Knox Is Not Significant, Writer Declares

By NORMAN HAPGOOD, Staff Correspondent of the Boston American.

Washington, Oct. 18.—The report that Governor Sproul hurried up the appointment of a successor to Senator Knox is receiving an exaggerated importance. Such haste had no bearing on the ratification of the treaty.

Senator Crow, the new appointee, will vote for the treaty. Senator Norris is now absent. He will vote against the treaty. He is due back on October 24.

If the confirmation of the treaty should depend on the vote of the new senator, the anti-treaty members probably can hold it for Norris's return.

They are confident they can do so in spite of Senator Lodge's announcement that he will hold the Senate in night session for a vote.

WILL NOT DECIDE ISSUE.

But neither of these single men will decide the issue.

It will be determined by the question of whether three or four more so-called Wilson Democrats can be won away from the leadership of Underwood and Hitchcock to vote against the treaty. The chance is rather small in spite of recent anti-treaty gains.

The fact that the Senate will probably ratify the treaty is not surprising.

What is surprising is that as many men out of ninety-five should be found to vote against a treaty called for by the desire of the world for formal peace and also negotiated by the party that is now overwhelmingly in power.

As usual since March 4 the greatest single power is wielded by Senator Borah. I do not agree with him in this case, strongly believing that the treaty should be ratified, but his opponents as well as his friends observe the greatly increased power which this Senator is now exercising.

Borah succeeded in bringing on the armament conference. He it was who forced through the Panama, Colle bill in the Senate, although that victory is more or less on paper, since it is understood that the House is to let the bill sleep a long time, certainly far beyond the time for the armament conference.

Many have boasted that the treaty negotiated with Germany gives all the fruits of the victory with none of the responsibilities. Borah says flatly:

"I say in all seriousness my country will never stoop to so selfish a policy. If we are to have these advantages, then every sense of moral responsibility insists that we shall do our part in the war of executing the treaty."

REFUSE ADVANTAGES.

So he refuses the advantages. He says that the League of Nations, for which Wilson risked all, was the only high-minded effort in the whole Versailles arrangement, and that to reject the League and then swallow the treaty is too much for his moral digestion.

The thing in which Borah believes most intensely is disarmament. He believes that the treaty with Germany ties us up with the Versailles treaty and that our relation to the Versailles treaty will prevent the success of the conference to reduce armaments.

Whatever else is said about this position it is high-minded and it is logical. It enables Borah to make monkeys of those members of his own party who, like Lodge, change their attitudes toward foreign affairs whenever there is a shift in party tactics. Borah has at least stood for exactly the same principles under a Republican administration that he stood for under a Democratic administration.

My own reasons for being glad that the treaty with Germany will be confirmed are clear enough. I find the world's danger not where Mr. Borah finds it, in too close co-operation with other nations, but rather in a self-confident nationalism, a tendency to look upon other nations with suspicion and upon ourselves with smugness.

That kind of nationalism, the I-am-better-than-thou nationalism, I believe did much to bring on the World War. Therefore, if I were a Senator I should follow the Hughes idea rather than the Borah policy.

But the Senate would be what it ought to be, and what it is not, if every member, whatever his beliefs, upheld them with the intelligence and lofty fairness of the Senator from Idaho.

VISCOUNT BRYCE DEPLORES FEAR OF JAPANESE

Says Men of Race in California Are Not Numerous Enough to Be Danger

By Associated Press.

London, Oct. 18.—Americans are apprehensive of Japanese aggression, says Viscount James Bryce, former British ambassador at Washington, in an article printed in today's London Times, in which he reviews the popular attitude of America toward the conference on the limitation of armaments, as he observed it during his recent visit to the United States.

He declares Americans hold the opinion that the Anglo-Japanese treaty encourages Japan to take an aggressive attitude.

Viscount Bryce deprecates the fear of the Japanese and says, among other things, that the Japanese in California are not numerous enough to be a danger, although they are clannish and progressive.

"Californians," he goes on, "have the same sort of dislike for them which the rougher part of the wage-earning class everywhere has for strangers who, while competing for work, are dissimilar in habits and aspect. The irritation against the Japanese is sedulously fostered and diffused by the meaner organs of the press and it receives some support from its association with the so-called Yellow races which was encouraged by the former Kaiser.

When All Else Failed Gland Pills Restored Health

So Says Mr. Geo. Spear, in Ill Health for Years; Thanks Glandex for Recovery.

"After being in a terribly weakened and run-down condition, during which I doctored and tried many different medicines without good results, today, thanks to Glandex Compound, I feel like a new man! My wife and friends are telling me I seem to be looking so well in years," said Mr. George E. Spear, 68 years old, for 18 years a respected citizen of Boston, living at 18 Harlow Street.

"A year ago last winter," he continued, "I had a bad case of the flu, which came near finishing me. I was unable to work for several months as my health was so poor. My stomach, kidneys and bladder bothered me a lot, I had no appetite, and I would feel awful dizzy and weak headed. I seemed to have no energy in me, and was sick, nervous and blue all the time. I had no energy or ambition to do anything.

"My wife had been reading in the papers about Glandex and urged me to try it. To my great surprise before I finished the first bottle I could notice a big improvement in both strength and weight. My appetite picked right up, all my stomach allments began disappearing until now, after three bottles, I am feeling just fine. My nerves are perfectly calm, the dizzy spells have left me, and I sleep fine every night. I really have become stouter and healthier than I have had for 20 years, and I am certainly glad to recommend Glandex to all.

Amazing Results Everywhere.

The reason Glandex brings such amazing results in so many cases is because it helps build up starved glands—which actually now says are the cause of many run-down conditions. Glandex feeds run-down glands with extracts taken from the glands of vigorous sheep and cattle. Practically the same principle as re-charging a storage battery! Also contains iron and other well known health builders.

AGED PASTOR IS ACCUSED OF SLAYING WIFE TO LOVE ANOTHER

THIS IS NO BULL! In balmy southern California the milkmaids often do their chores in bathing suits. No, Oscar, this is not an advertisement for farm hands! It's just a novel means of keeping cool and comfortable while working. (K.)

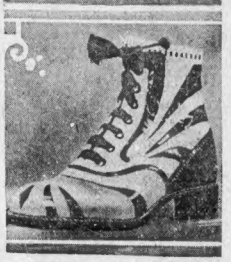
SPEED! D. Eusebio Sanchez, the sensational Spanish daredevil, giving an exhibition with fair companions in Madrid. This bus was traveling at 80 miles an hour when snapped. (W. W.)

ORCELLA REXFORD, lady color psychologist, of London, says husbands should not wear red neckties if they want to stay away from the divorce courts. She tells wives to avoid red, also. (K.)

THIS CHAP has an awful load on his chest! His name is Breithart and he's one of the strongest men in Germany. Picture shows them breaking half a ton of rock on his chest. He breaks chains with his teeth. He's a tough kid. (Int.)

HOW OLD were you when — this young lady looked like this? Of course, you know her. You don't? Why, it's Mary Pickford when she was playing a small part in the "Fatal Wedding" in 1903. (Int.)

CUTTING UP! How would you like to "get shot" and at the same time have your tonsils removed bloodlessly? This instrument, which bears the cute name of hoanastatic guillotine, can do it. Now being shown at the London Medical Exhibition. It works like a pistol by the pulling of a trigger-like lever. Photo shows a nervy patient about to undergo the operation. (W. W.)

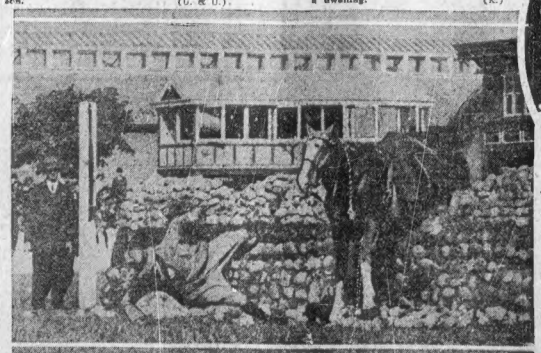


THERE'S a kick coming here. Imagine shoe experts trying to force kiddies to wear this zebra style shoe. That's what they are doing in London. The kids say the dealers think they're smart. How about it, youngsters—who is right? (Int.)

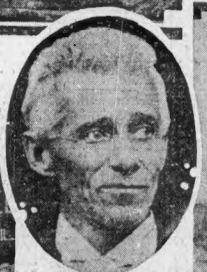
BON VOYAGE! Countess Serck, who for the past two years has been living in California, is now on her way to London, thence to Russia, in search of her brother, a boy of 12, who is believed to be in the hands of the Bolsheviki. The countess was a Russian princess. The child is being cared for as a refugee, according to dispatches.

THIS is a fish story, not a FISH story! Launcelot B. Lee, floor superintendent of a local department store, and his 54-pound cod, caught near Graves Light. It is believed to be the largest caught in Boston waters for years. Gave him hard battle before it was landed.

THE GRACE THAT WAS GREECE! Paradoxically enough, it is generally a woman, herself pretty much a riddle, who attempts to interpret the riddle of life by rhythmic grace. In other words, do you believe that life as you and we live it can be expressed by a pivoting, whirling, plunging woman? Margaret Loomis, exponent of the Grecian dance, is certain that there is nothing that has not its expression in the dance. Pictured here in one of her charm- (U. & U.)



THE SPILL THAT COMES ONCE IN A LIFETIME! Usually after a plunge like this the rider is done hurdling. He is either under 6 feet of earth or severely crippled. This was one of the thrilling moments at the Dublin Horse Show and graphically shows Lady Kells, ridden by John Dinsmore, crashing through the top of the stone wall. Dinsmore, strangely enough, was not seriously hurt. It was the only spill of the show.



ON TRIAL! Rev. John A. Spencer of Lakeport, Cal., now facing a jury on the charge of having drowned his wife, with two motives in view, to obtain her property and to gain marital freedom to permit his association with another woman. (Int.)

FORE FOR A PAIR! Would you like to have pink cheeks, girls, minus the rouge pot and that sort of artificiality? Take the advice of the Misses Dorothy Johnson (left) and Lee Gibson, who say that rising early and dashing off to the golf links for 18 holes will do it. Both are dancers and resort to this exercise to keep them fit. Not even the chilly October weather can force them to discard their light garb. (Int.)

ARTHUR BRISBANE would call this atavism. Tate Slevin, a peddler, has solved the housing problem. He has reverted to type and is living in a cave in the Bronx (N. Y.) that was once the cellar of a dwelling. (K.)

THE IRRESISTIBLE CHARM OF BLACK! The delightful combination of black ostrich and velvet is charmingly emphasized here. As a dress hat it contrasts exquisitely with ivory skin. Distinctly a Paris creation with native simplicity. Black, by the way, is decidely popular this season. (U. & U.)

Her locket and other trinkets were left untouched on the bureau of her room. Miss Larsen is a very attractive girl with a mass of curly black hair, brown eyes, 5 feet 6 inches in height and weighs about 125 pounds.

HONOR FIRST AMERICAN TO DIE IN WAR

Oscar C. Tugo Circle in Roxbury is Dedicated at Exercises Today

Tribute to the first American to be killed in the World War was paid today to Oscar C. Tugo No. 55 Walk Hill street, Forest Hills, when the circle at the intersection of Louis Pasteur and Longwood avenues, in front of Harvard Medical School, Roxbury, was named and dedicated in his honor as Oscar C. Tugo Circle.

Leaders in the public life of the community, State and nation paid tribute to Boston's hero, who gave his life on September 4 1917, when an airplane bomb fell, killing Tugo, a lieutenant from Kansas City, and several others from Chicago and New York.

Tugo went overseas with the Dr. Harvey Cushing Base Hospital No. 5 as a private. The United States, in May, 1917, relieved the British Hospital No. 26 outfit on the British front, and it was while in this tour of duty that Tugo fell, the first American to die.

The dedicatory exercises opened with a eulogy and service by Rev. Malcolm E. Peabody, chaplain of the hospital unit to which Tugo was attached.

He was followed with prayer by Bishop Lawrence. Surgeon-General Ireland next spoke and was followed by the singing of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," during which wreaths were placed on the memorial tablet.

Major Herbert Edwards spoke, followed by the sounding of "Taps" by the company bugler.

LEGION DEFENDS PARKER HILL CONDITIONS

Resents Charge of Forbes That Hospital Lacks Personal Touch

Officials of the American Legion, both of the State department and local posts in this vicinity are not favorably impressed by the statements accredited to Colonel Charles R. Forbes, director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, relative to conditions at Parker Hill Hospital. They say no inspection was conducted that he spoke without a knowledge of the real facts. Some suspect that he has been playing a little politics.

He was quoted as saying that conditions at the new Soldiers' Hospital are not everything possible to be done for the war veterans there, but that he could not say the same of Parker Hill. In general, he is credited with saying conditions are as good at Parker Hill as in many large institutions where there are so many men, but there seems to be a tendency to overlook the little things, the personal touch with the patients.

PRAISES PERSONAL TOUCH.

"If there is one hospital in the country where the personal touch with the patients is splendid it is Parker Hill Hospital," says Major James T. Duane, State commander of the American Legion, "and if there is one hospital head in this part of the country who has but little use for the disabled soldiers it is the ambassador of the United States Naval Hospital.

"He is the man who declared in a speech to a women's organization that, in his opinion, 99 per cent. of the soldiers seeking treatment and compensation were quitters and liars or words to that effect. I heard him make the statement and, at the request of the State department, I reported him to Secretary of the Navy Denby, who turned the matter over to his assistant, young 'Teddy' Roosevelt.

"I cannot discover that Roosevelt did anything but attempt to gloss over the affair. Persons of political power in this State took up considerable of my time and sought to have the complaint withdrawn. They were in touch with Washington and brought their political influence to bear. Roosevelt dismissed the matter by writing to me that it was quite impossible for me to quote him what this naval commander of the Chelsea Hospital actually did say.

POLITICS CHARGED.

"Many of the members of the Legion have an idea that this statement by Colonel Forbes of the Veterans' Bureau savors of politics. At the last State convention of the Legion I was thanked for resenting the attitude of the naval commander toward the disabled and for charging that consequently had violated the principles of the American Legion constitution which says 'we are banded together for mutual helpfulness.' My report was unanimously adopted by the convention."

Other members of the Legion who have a knowledge of hospital sentiment and conditions agree that Colonel Forbes was wrong in saying that the personal touch with patients is overlooked at Parker Hill and assert that he could, with more truth, had he been better informed praised Major R. W. Browne officer in charge and Captain T. L. Storey, executive officer for their point of personal helpfulness of the disabled.

PLAN HOSPITAL CHANGES.

It has developed since Colonel Forbes' departure that some of the poor conditions at Parker Hill, and they are minor in importance, would have been obviated months ago if the proper agencies at Washington had paid attention to the complaints sent from Boston.

Through dispatches from Washington it was learned that it is the intention of the Veterans' Bureau to make the Parker Hill institution a hospital for the tubercular exclusively. The plan calls for the expenditure of $20,000 for the necessary gas and for the transfer of a unit of surgical cases to the new Soldiers' Home from Parker Hill and vice versa. The changes are made at Parker Hill, the transfer to that institution of 300 of the total of 495 tubercular cases being cared for by the government in general hospitals of New England.

The government is paying $72,900 a year for the use of the Robert Bent Brigham Hospital as a part of U. S. Public Health Hospital No. 41 and is paying the Elks $1 a year for the use of the hospital erected by that order on Parker Hill in 1917. Five wards are being used in the Brigham Hospital besides the administration offices. By enclosing five of the long verandas of the Elks building with glass 110 more beds can be added to the present capacity of 70 beds, the government can save $12,000, and, at the same time, greatly oblige the trustees of the Brigham hospital who are anxious for the complete return of their property.

TO CLOSE CONTRACT HOSPITALS.

A portable building, 100 by 40, for the re-educational work, an extension, or the orthopedic building and a thorough overhauling of the Elks building are other features of the new plans.

When these changes are completed every contract hospital in this section will be closed. For enlarging the capacity of the naval hospital to care for the 200 extra patients, the cost is estimated at $4,500.

POLICE SEEK ASSAILANT OF PROVIDENCE MAN

Providence, Oct. 13.—Patrick McCarthy, No. 22 Tasseway street, found unconscious with his skull fractured in front of No. 304 Charles street, was assaulted and did not incur possibly fatal injuries by falling, the police say.

McCarthy was sent to the Rhode Island Hospital. He has lacerations of scalp and face that the doctors think were inflicted by blows. A tall man seen in the vicinity of McCarthy's unconscious form is sought.

Editorial:—

Is this the first time your attention has been attracted to the somewhat unusual advertising running below?

If it is, we wish to point out a few things for your undivided advantage.

The first thing you will note is the complete absence of claims or exaggerated statements. Then you will notice that no former prices are quoted—one of the conservative rules of this house.

Then you will notice that the merchandise in general gives you the impression of dependable quality. The price may be low, but you feel instinctively that the article is probably of good character. You will notice the descriptions, while brief, give an adequate idea of the article—in most cases helped out by an illustration sketched directly from a sample.

You may get the impression that it is all quite a bit different from the advertising of any other store.

All these things are obvious. What isn't so clear is what we wish to add—and which is much more important.

Every piece of merchandise advertised in these "Wednesday-Thursday Specials" is carefully selected on this basis—will it be so convincing in respect to quality, seasonableness and value that it will result in large sales for us and satisfaction to the purchasers?

What you could not be expected to know is that every item advertised—not only today, but every "Wednesday-Thursday"—is placed on sale at so low a price (even when this means a loss to us) that it is without question, as far as we can determine, the best value—or if you like—the biggest bargain of the kind to be found in Boston.

We hope, therefore, that you will regularly read the "Wednesday-Thursday" announcements. By means of offering this dependable merchandise at the lowest prices quoted anywhere within our field of distribution we have attracted a great deal of business to this store.

On the other hand, we have done a good thing for many thousands of people who have read the advertising and have bought the goods, for we have in the aggregate saved them many thousands of dollars on goods which they had to buy and which otherwise would have cost them a great deal more.

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

OLD 'DOPE' WAS NEARLY PERFECT IN WORLD SERIES CONTESTS

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

Dope, in baseball, is a strange and wonderful thing. There is in it the human element which makes it uncertain, and which adds to the zest of the sport. We have no records of any human beings, not even patients in hospitals, that are kept as carefully or that show as much as do the averages of ball players.

From a study of a month's average of a player, carefully analyzed, what he has done at bat on bases and on the field, it is possible to tell just what is the condition, physically and mentally of a ball player better than a nurse can tell the condition of her patient from her charts.

We can judge from what a ball player has done just what he is liable to do. We did, in this last series, a wonderful example. We knew that the Yankees must depend upon two pitchers. It was a known fact that Mays is a pitcher who works extraordinarily well after a good rest, that he has been notoriously unable to come back and pitch well unless he has a good rest, and that, if he attempts to come back too quickly he is liable to be wild and beat himself.

We has done this during all his baseball career. Yet he came back after four days and pitched better than he did in the first game, and came back a second time after three days and pitched, not so fast, but even better.

He crossed the dope. He lost, but he should have won.

Phil Douglas has, for ten years, been promising to be one of the great pitchers of all time. He has shown flashes. Every one in baseball knew that if the big fellow put his mind on his work, behaved himself and kept in condition he would rank with Mathewson, with Walsh, with Clarkson, with Johnson—the great pitchers of all time.

Chased off half a dozen teams, suspended, threatened with expulsion, Douglas came into this series figuring to pitch two fine games, as he was in top condition and his style was exactly the kind that worries the Yankee batters most.

He doped to work well twice, and thus to be hit hard. In a way the dope was justified, as he was hit hard in the start of the third game and then, as he escaped punishment during the early innings, he warmed up gracefully and finished pitching as well as ever.

There has been, among the latter-day pitchers, an idea that they could not stand the work of pitching more than one game in four days, and they average less than one game a week.

In the old days pitchers, throwing 50 per cent. more balls than the moderns use, used to work three times a week.

One pitched a solid month by himself, pitching every game. That was Radbourn.

Jouett Meekin pitched five games in succession against the Chicago team to beat them a series. He frequently worked three games in succession and showed few ill effects from his experience.

The remarkable thing in this series is that the pitchers rose to the occasion and pitched far better than they showed in their own leagues and pitched much than they would have, consented to pitch in their own leagues.

That they can pitch oftener and better when the spirit moves them than they have been pitching is certain.

There is another element, however, and that is that an unknown style puzzles batters more than great pitching does. The chief reason that batters fail to hit in world series is that they are not accustomed to the style of opposing pitchers.

It shows, too, that a smart manager, willing to take a chance might upset all the dope in the world by using young, strong-armed kid pitchers to start series, especially when their teams are outclassed.

For instance, had McGraw been willing to take a chance with Sheo he might have won the series easily. His slow ball would have worried the Yankees terribly. Admittedly he might have been nervous and pitched badly.

The Yankees might have used Rogers, who undoubtedly would have stopped the Giants dead. He has all the speed in the world, plenty of nerve, and he is not afraid to shoot a ball at a batter.

If the Yankees had taken a chance with him after they won their first two games, the story of the series would have been vastly different.

The hot scramble for leadership of the Old Colony League that has been taking place down the South Shore way will settle down to one team when Whitman High plays Hingham High at Hingham today. Both have won their two league games played to date, and the winner of today's contest will without much trouble lay a strong arm on the title that is at stake in this district.

Not in the three years that Whitman has carried the championship have they been dogged so persistently as by Hingham. Although hampered with an injury list that claims three of the backfield men, Coach Gould of Hingham, who has been directing the destinies of the team, is optimistic as to the outcome.

Coach Carr of Whitman has given today's contest considerable consideration if the hard practice of the past two weeks is to be taken. Wayland Mosse, the regular halfback, will be unable to play, but in his shoes will step Bowles, who has performed creditably this season. Lester Mosher will be unable to play owing to an injury sustained in a recent contest. There is a possibility that the injured part of Art Lincoln will be in such condition as to warrant his starting in this gruelling contest.

Captain Paul Folsom, who has been performing to the queen's taste at right halfback, is in fine fettle for the contest, and before the final whistle is blown should make his presence felt.

Chiros, the sturdy fullback for Whitman, and the real sensation of the Old Colony League, will be there for all his worth. His line plunging has been sensational, not to speak of his fine work on the defense.

A snappy contest between two district schools for the commanding position of the District School League presents itself to the fans that attend Braves Field for today's double header. West Roxbury, with two wins to its credit and an average of 1905, meets Brighton, boss of the division last year and strongly entrenched for the same position again this season.

Brighton has defeated Boston Trade, Charlestown and East Boston all comparatively easy opponents. In West Roxbury they meet an eleven that will sure make an interesting fight to keep their goal line unmarred.

In the other game South Boston meets Charlestown, both of whom are evenly matched. Everything is in the favor of Coach Green to win today over the Charlestown clan, who are now having a hard time holding down the cellar position.

WIMLER OF PITTSBURGH LOSES TO CHICK SUGGS

New Bedford, Oct. 18.—Eddie Wimler of Pittsburgh, in his first start in this section, was defeated here last night by Chick Suggs, the New England featherweight champion, who was awarded the decision at the close of a hard ten round bout.

The Pittsburgh boxer had a cut opened over his left eye in the third round and was handicapped considerably by the flow of blood from the wound in the latter rounds.

He shook Suggs twice in the seventh round with savage left hooks but was unable to follow up the advantage.

Young Savoah of this city, was awarded the decision over Young Joe Burks of Fall River, in a six-round semi-final bout. Savoah was floored for the count of nine in the third round but managed to stay through the round, then carry the fire following.

Young Wilson and Algeron were awarded verdicts over Young Nelson and Lew Turner, respectively, at the end of six-round preliminaries.

By FRED C. LANE.

Malden High, which has been the underdog in the eight-act drama of the Suburban League in past years, is this season holding down one of the leading roles and making excellent progress with the new position, so much so that every inhabitant of Malden is standing back of the team and rooting for it.

Coach Jack McDonald, who has smiled through all the reverses and hard knocks that the eleven has suffered in past years, is wearing a radiating smile that won't come off, all because he has a team that refuses to be beaten. Set-backs, encountered in recent years, are things of the past, according to Coach McDonald, who has made all preparations for the carrying of the Suburban League bunting in the Thanksgiving Day parade when his team plays Medford.

The squad reporting to Coach McDonald at the opening of the season, was anything but promising. From this green material Malden has developed a team that has at this early date brought credit to the city and the coach. Six elevens have been played, Woburn, Saugus, Boston College High, Haverhill, Rindge and Brookline. Malden won five and the sixth contest ended in a tie.

The 7 to 7 game with Haverhill was the first contest that sent a chill down the backs of the other coaches of the Suburban League. Up to that state, Malden was considered a flash in the pan.

On Saturday next the real contest of the season will be played when Malden will meet Cambridge Latin on Russell Field, Cambridge.

Much depends on the result as both are tied for leadership in the league. There is little to choose between. It will depend on which eleven will get the breaks. If Coach Leander McDonald has the good fortune to have Isadore Zarakov in the lineup the hopes of the Cantabs will be bright.

Captain Al Butler, who has proved himself an able player and leader, is shining brighter than any season of his schoolboy career. Haverhill fans and scribes are still talking of the fine playing of him and his teammates, Crawford, who, for the first time in two years, stopped the rushing tactics of the famous Parisian and Legacey, the stars of the Haverhill backfield.

Working in conjunction with Butler is the finest backfield that Malden has had for many years, "Honey" Lawin, Upham, Sandberg and Cafferella. When under way, Upham appears invincible. His line plunging had the whole Rindge team up in arms. Lewin, of late years, developed dropkicking which helped materially in making the count 10 against Rindge.

Cambridge Latin was unable to cross the Rindge goal line last Saturday and was obliged to be content with a drop kick from the toe of "Tubber" Cronin. The Cambridge school authorities are making preparations to entertain one of the largest assemblies that ever crowded into Russell Field.

LONDOS WILL HAVE VERY BUSY WRESTLING SESSION

Jimmy Londos, the Greek whirlwind, will have a busy session, as busy as he ever had in his career, when he will face Joe Polk, the western wrestler, in the main event at the Grand Opera House Thursday night.

Polk is chunkily built and has an impressive record, Londos and Polk will go to a finish.

Frank Jedlinski was ready to meet Londos, but when Polk was secured Frank was matched with Cyclone Rees, the Dane, who has fully recovered the use of his eyes and who has just returned from Europe where he won the catch-as-catch-can title in tournaments in Sweden, Denmark and Berlin.

BAN ON SIEGAL CAUSES BITTER FIGHT AGAINST BOXING BOARD

By JACK CONWAY.

Nate Siegal is once more the storm centre of the boxing game in Massachusetts as a result of an order of the Boxing Commission suspending the Revere welterweight for three months.

Siegal, without a hearing, was found guilty of insubordination, according to a boxer without a license and with actions unbecoming a boxer.

The alleged offences are said to have been committed during the ninth round of the Reed-Bogash bout at Mechanics Building last Friday night.

Siegal was a spectator, having paid $2 for a ringside seat. He was seated with a party of friends. As he is under the same management as Reed and boxes with Pal daily, it was only natural he should have rooted for the Natick Sunday school teacher.

* * *

In the ninth round Siegal saw a chance for Reed to score effectively by using a left-hand uppercut to the jaw. He left his seat at the ringside and went to Reid's corner. He then said: "Use an uppercut, Pal."

According to Larry Conley, Reed's manager, a deputy boxing commissioner then came to the corner and ordered Siegal to keep quiet, saying he never might lose his license. Conley declares he then instructed Siegal to return to his seat.

* * *

Conley charges that Siegal is being discriminated against. He calls attention to how the Boxing Commission tried to prevent the Shevlin-Siegal bout by ordering the latter to first battle Mike Morley. Conley added that an organization of Jewish citizens is planning to circulate a state-wide petition in Nate's behalf.

* * *

The Boxing Commission states it has an affidavit from one of its deputies in which the officer claims that Siegal threatened to attack him. The affidavit goes on to state how Siegal, although not a licensed second, attempted to start from Reed's corner and that he was ordered to leave this position by a State deputy.

The deputy claims he told Siegal the latter had no license and that the boxer replied:

"Come outside and I shall show you my license."

* * *

The suspension of Siegal recalls the fact that the last Shevlin-Siegal bout was almost stopped on the day of the show. Siegal was ordered to submit to a special examination on the ground he had a weak heart. The doctor passed him. This did not end Nate's troubles, however. On the evening of the show three State detectives spent much of their time outside of Siegal's dressing room. When their motives were questioned, they stated they had to stand some place.

Cy Goodwin informed us today that Shaver O'Brien and Young Gould are both ready for action. Gould has been winning step by step, while O'Brien would like to start a new run of victories by battling any of our worthy welterweights.

HARVARD MUST IMPROVE TO BEAT PENN STATE

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Can Harvard stave off old defeat this year?

Those who have seen the Harvard eleven in its unimpressive victories over none too strong small college elevens this year, and who have read of or seen in action Buzo Bezdek's Nippany lions from Penn State College, are asking this question and finding difficulty in gaining a satisfactory answer.

And those who recall the type of football offered by the Penn State team of 1916 in its game with Harvard, and realize that the best coach of that team, Dick Harlow is Bezdek's advisor in the preparation for Saturday's Stadium contest, feel certain that the Crimson must improve one hundred per cent. in the few intervening days if it is to approach a "Big Three" schedule with a clean slate.

* * *

That 1916 team was the "goat" of perhaps the weirdest officiating exhibition ever witnessed at the Stadium. In that game Penn State crossed Harvard's goal line three times, but on each occasion the officials, evidenced ability that would have put Sherlock Holmes to shame, for they charged Penn State with infractions of the rules that were not apparent to others, and not only revoked the touchdowns but inflicted costly penalties.

* * *

On at least one occasion, the Penn State captain inquired of the officials the reason for their action. The answer of the latter was that a Penn State player had been guilty of holding or unnecessary roughness.

* * *

The Penn State leader, anxious to learn just which of his men was responsible, asked the officials to point it out that the captain himself might order him from the game. The referee in answer to the request indicated a halfback, Berryman by name, who at the particular play referred to, was racing down the field and over the goal line with the ball, and who consequently could not have been guilty of the offence charged.

* * *

Whether the other penalties to Penn States developed from similar causes as "holding or roughing by a ball-carrying back" is not known by the writer.

* * *

And on the other hand, Harvard backs crossed the Penn State goal line once and yet were credited with two touchdowns.

* * *

A rather unusual photograph, taken by a newspaper photographer caught the play on which the unique touchdown came. It showed the Harvard back flat upon the ground with two or three Penn State players holding him, the ball still inside the field of play and the officials in excellent position to observe any movement by either the ball after having been downed could have been shoved over the goal line. Yet the ball did get over the goal line in some manner and said officials declared it to be an honest-to-goodness touchdown.

* * *

It does not follow that this season's Penn State team is of the high quality of that which scored the three pointless touchdowns against the Crimson. Higgins, an end on that team, and Berryman, a halfback, were All America men, Higgins winning such honor for three years, and there were others who won honorable mention from the football writers of the East.

* * *

But Penn State has a habit of turning out excellent football elevens. It is a fairly large institution, having 4,000 or 5,000 students, and draws its material from high schools and prep schools, which are second only to New England in "raising youthful football players for future college careers.

Last year Penn State won all but two of its games, being tied on those occasions by Lehigh and Pittsburgh respectively. It boasted two linemen and two backs who won selection to All America or All Eastern teams, but unfortunately lost through graduation or professionalism all but three of its varsity regulars of last year, namely Snell, the fullback and captain; Killinger, the quarterback, and Macdonald an end.

* * *

Penn State has made it a habit to take on a real schedule every year its team engaged Lehigh last week encounters Harvard this week and numbers as its future opponents, Georgia Tech, Carnegie Tech, the Navy and Pittsburgh. It confidently expects to emerge Thanksgiving afternoon with a record unmarked by defeat, and then go to Seattle to engage the University of Washington December 5

* * *

With so many veterans missing this might appear rather doubtful were it not for the quality of the new material that has presented itself to the State College coach.

* * *

With six of the seven line positions to be filled he found Hufford to be a reasonably good end; 215-pound McMahon and 190-pound Madera to be tackles of promise; 200-pound Barr and 185-pound Bedenk to be satisfactory guards; 205-pound Roderik to be a centre of ability, and with the veterans 170-pound McCollum for the other end position, the line should have more weight and potential strength than that of any of recent Penn State teams.

* * *

Then there are among other likely line substitutes: 205-pound Crowther, a tackle; 184-pound Johnson, a guard; 180-pound Smoginsky, an end

* * *

With the veteran 160-pound quarterback, Killinger, and the veteran 180-pound fullback, Snell, as a backfield nucleus, Coach Bezdeck has filled in the halfback positions with 184-pound Cornwall and 178-pound Hess, and 170-pound Lightner, both subs of last year, to serve in the same capacity this season.

* * *

This organization will outweigh Harvard's team in several positions, will be outweighed in others, but probably will average a weight advantage of two or three pounds to the man, thereby furnishing the Crimson with a weight proposition that the Crimson has not encountered this season.

LANDIS TO STAND BY GUNS IN RUTH CASE

King of Swat May Get Long Suspension for Breaking Baseball Rules

Chicago, Oct. 15.—A decision in the Babe Ruth post-season case by Judge K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner is expected within a few days and the general impression prevailing here today was that Ruth will be let off with a suspension long enough to keep him out of a few of next season's games without pay.

"What goes up must come down," said Judge Landis "I notified Ruth two weeks ago that the rules prohibited this sort of thing"

New York dispatches received here indicated that Ruth would receive no support from the Yankee club owners in his controversy with the Judge. Colonels Ruppert and Huston are quoted as saying.

"Judge Landis has no alternative but to meet the situation firmly."

The judge's statement may be embellished with some of the repartee which have made his court cases notable. It was indicated in his remark that his forthcoming statement would show "what kind of a gentleman Ruth was"

This was taken to be a reference to Ruth's assertion that the judge hung up the receiver when Ruth called him on the telephone to discuss the Lajnstorming tour.

Reports from Elmira, N. Y., where Ruth's aggregation played Monday, quoted Ruth as saying he would attempt to appeal "if Judge Landis sees fit to rule us out of baseball for the remainder of our lives," but that he believed he was only following a precedent set by other major league stars of former years.

THE FEMALE FIGHT FAN

The female of the specie is more deadly than the male.—Kipling

Boxing is facing a more dangerous menace than ever before in the history of the sport in this State.

The money-mad manager, the hungry promoters, the fake fighter and the two-bit bettor are as nothing as compared with this new peril—the female fight fan.

Little notice has been paid to the F. F. F. to date but she is becoming more numerous and also more distasteful to the rank and file of regulars, although some may claim in all good faith, that the women add a tone of respectability at sporting events.

The girlies are the best sports in the world but their presence at the ringside does not meet with the sanction of husbands, brothers or sweethearts.

The sight of a woman cheering her very head off for some bruised and bloody ring gladiator is far from uplifting and is not considered good sportswomanship even by the most hardened fight fan.

There are only a few of the fair sex who are among the "regulars" and no great harm would come if even these few were forced to trade their battlefront seats for a pair of passes to some good movie show or an admission ticket to the Fireside Sewing Circle.

Says a Poet Gets Lots of Food for Thought, but He Doesn't Get Much to Eat

It seems too bad that a lot of poets and artists have to be dead before they can become well known.

But most of them have a hard time making a living while they're alive and they might as well make up their mind to die if they want to become great.

Nobody really enjoys a poem unless they know that the poet starved to death while he was writing it.

You hear of poets and artists dying, from most everything except indigestion.

If an artist wasn't hungry all the time he'd draw pictures that you could understand and then they wouldn't be worth anything

There are thousands of wonderful poets and artists living today, you won't hear anything about them

An artist takes ten thousand dollars out of their canvas last year. That's business. Thousands of artists never made a dime out of their canvases. That's art.

They can do their work quickly because they never have to stop for meals.

Ringling Brothers made a million dollars out of their canvas last year. That's business. Thousands of artists never made a dime out of their canvases. That's art.

Most artists and poets are cultured and refined but if their table manners are bad you have to excuse them, they don't have as much practice as you do.

Some of them get by on nothing and lots of times two of them live on the same amount.

LOUISVILLE WINS SERIES FROM BALTIMORE

Junior World's Series Honors Won by the American Association Club

Baltimore, Oct. 18.—Louisville defeated Baltimore in the post-season series yesterday, 11 to 8. That victory gave the Colonels the necessary fifth game and the junior world's series honors.

The series went eight routests out of a possible nine. Ogden, who had beaten Louisville three times for the Orioles, was hit hard and knocked out of the box in the sixth inning. Sanders pitched well up to the eighth for the Colonels.

B. U. Team Has Stiff Work for Game With Trinity

The Boston University squad went through a stiff workout at Braves Field yesterday. Coach Whalen was not satisfied with the game with Wesleyan Saturday and feels that the team has yet to show its real strength. Whalen has the team playing a whirlwind passing game, which accounts, in a measure, for the fine support it is receiving.

In "Buster" Williamson B. U. has a wonderful passer, who handles the pigskin as if it were a baseball, while Worcester is a sure receiver. With this pair two ends of the calibre of Carroll, O'Hare and Lucas gives the basis of an air attack that is hard to stop.

The overhead game brought victory Saturday and Whalen will undoubtedly rely on this style of play in the game with Trinity at Hartford Saturday.

Cochrane, who has done most of the punting is laid up with a charley horse as a result of Saturday's game.

B. C. ELEVEN COMES HOME TONIGHT

Victorious Team Will Get Warm Welcome From Students and Alumni

The entire student body of Boston College, augmented by a large gathering of the alumni and friends of the college will be on hand tonight when the victorious Maroon and Gold eleven arrives at the South Station. The boys from Boston travelled 2,000 miles to Texas, met the Baylor "Bears," skinned them a ve, and have maintained the reputation of Boston College in the Southwest.

If a royal welcome can restore the vigor of the team after its long, tiresome journey the reception prepared for it will do more than the grafting of a base of money glands.

Mastin's VITAMON Tablets contain highly concentrated yeast-vitamines as well as the two other important vitamines (Fat Soluble A and Water Soluble C), all of which are regarded as absolutely necessary for perfect health, vigor and proper physical development. By a special process of concentration a proper dose of all of the three known vitamines is contained in an active state in Mastin's VITAMON Tablets.

Mastin's VITAMON Tablets by mixing with your food help it to digest and provide the health-giving, strength-building nourishment that your body must have to make firm tissue, strong nerves, rich blood, clear skin and a keen, active brain. They will not upset the stomach or cause that bloated feeling, but, on the contrary, are a great aid in overcoming indigestion or chronic constipation.

If you are thin, sunken cheeked, hollow chested, run down and underweight you will find this simple test well worth trying: First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Next take Mastin's VITAMON—two tablets with each meal. Then weigh and measure yourself again each week and continue taking Mastin's VITAMON regularly until you are satisfied with your gain in weight and energy. Mastin's VITAMON Tablets are easy and economical to take—they are in no way distasteful—they will not upset the stomach and they also keep indefinitely. So remarkable are the benefits from these highly concentrated tablets that entire satisfaction is absolutely guaranteed or the small amount you pay for the trial will be promptly refunded. You can get Mastin's VITAMON Tablets at all good druggists, such as Houghton & Dutton, Shepard Stores, Epstein's, Walker Rintel's, Macy's 3 Stores, Armstrong's 4 Stores, Liggett's

Arthur Stringer's Studio Romance THE WINE OF LIFE Illustrated by James Montgomery Flagg

A Stirring Narrative of the Influence of Love on the Lives of a Girl and a Man

THE ACTION SO FAR

Osora Storrow, a young sculptor, coming to New York to perfect himself in his art, meets Torrie Thrasset, a strikingly lovely girl studying for the stage under the direction of Herman Brassler, a producer. Storrow saves his cousin, Charlotte Kirkwer, from drowning, and she confesses her love for him. Later he marries Torrie, and on the advice of Chester Hardy gives up sculpture and starts to write a novel of the North Country. Torrie, very angry when Storrow dislikes their marriage, quarrels with her husband, then repents and contritely tells him she has given up her stage work and that he is the only thing that counts. But Storrow grows more and more suspicious of Torrie's past and she more and more restless.

BUT now, with the nocturnal hum of the city in his ears, he found no art to relax the over-tensioned bow. The fault, he knew, lay in his own heart, sour with disgust, heavy with defeat, tortured with the thought that he had made a failure of life.

Step by step he recalled his earlier hopes and aspirations, his older and cleaner ways of life, his more eager and enlightened outlook on the world. He reviewed his first advent to the city, his meeting with Torrie, his surrender to the impulses of the body, his quixotic marriage, his aborted attempts at revolt against an environment which he had only half recognized as degrading, his false steps and mistakes, and his entrance into that culminating consciousness of betrayal which now left him as poignantly alone as though he stood the last man on the last ice-floe of a planet lost in space.

A sense of strangeness of earthly things returned to him, as he lay there as rigid as the blade of a sword. In remembering the gulfs which now yawned between him and the quietly breathing body reposing with such ironic intimacy on the same bed with him, he was no longer swayed by that earlier unreasoning passion to inflict injury on it, to impose suffering on what had brought suffering to him.

His feelings had merged into something more passive, a vague and perplexed indifference, a desire for silence and the obliterating dust of time, a hunger for even the hope of quietness and remoteness where the healing forces of life might in some devious way reassert themselves.

A Call to Hope

He had sunk low, he remembered, and had surrendered much; but he had not altogether given up the hope of hope. Somewhere, in the unstirring core of his being, there was the trampled spark which could not and should not go out. If that went, all indeed was lost. In some way and by some means, at whatever cost, he must recover his grip on life.

He must go back to the beginning of things, across though the fog struggle on until he once more reached solid and decipherable ground. Somewhere in the world there was a great serenity which was being denied him. He was meant to be a part of that serenity, above the harrying disorder and distractions of life. And above that blind welter, he felt, must dwell some far-off purpose, some larger order which he was as yet unable to see in perspective, some wider scheme of things in which even earthly passion might find its reason and its redemption.

Storrow felt it to be there, even as he realized that it lay beyond his reach. And his secondary sense of frustration brought with it a new and deeper misery. It left him apparently mocked at by the very God on whom he stood unable to call for help. Yet as he lay there, in his silent conflict of soul, he prayed without knowing that he was praying. He was unconscious of prayer, since no answer came to those frantic and only half-inarticulate appeals to the unknown.

Drawn by James Montgomery Flagg.

"Gee, Torrie," said Pannie, "man-handlin' like that ought to be great for your art."

He was conscious only of his suffering, of the sleepless tension that seemed unendurable, of a feeling of being prematurely old and exhausted. The only tatter of hope that remained with him lay in the memory of that unobliterated spark lost somewhere in the trodden husks of his past, the spark in which he still forlornly refused to relinquish belief. It prompted him to remember, as he lay there waiting for morning, that even as the ache would go out of the body which had been so ill-used, the exhibitor ache would pass away from the spirit which no longer seemed his to control.

Yet before he could know that restoration, he felt, he would have longer any doubt about the matter. To stay between those walls, in the old rut, played on by the old influences and surroundings, was out of the question. He must go.

He thought of Angelo Dellazio and his cellar studio very much as a man dying of thirst might think of a spring bubbling out of a hillside. There, he told himself, was a cave into which he might crawl with his wounds. There, he remembered, he could know the consolation of temporary nonentity, of submerging himself unremembered among the unknown. And the more he thought the matter over the more fixed he became in purpose. His spirit grew quieter. He no longer dreaded the thought of the morning.

When Torrie, waking early, hurriedly slipped out of bed and began dressing, he lay with his eyes closed, preferring that she accept him as still sleeping. Yet he found it hard to control his breathing when she came to his bedside and stood over him.

The knowledge that she was staring down at him brought a pang to his heart; he did not know why. He was determined, however, to betray no sign of feeling. It was not until she stooped closer, and with a little movement or two that was both solicitous and tender, drew the covers up about his shoulders, that feeling too strong for his control welled up in his body. His eyes were still closed, but a sort of a sob burst from him, a ghost of a sob which he found himself utterly unable to repress.

"What is it, Honey?" asked Torrie, still stooping over him, with a debilitating little flutter of anxiety in her voice.

"I guess I was dreaming," he said, almost gruffly, as he made an effort to turn on his side, determined that she should not see the tears which were wet on his face. He was ashamed of his weakness. He was determined, too, that there should be no more perilous passages of words between them, though the strange woman stood for several moments gazing down at her husband's averted head.

He distinctly caught the sound of her sigh as she turned away, at last, and busied herself at the homely little duties of the kitchenette. Those tasks, for some reason, took on a tragic aspect, even in their triviality. They seemed permeated with a coloring of pathos which he could not fathom. Even the thought that she was eating that hurried breakfast alone weighed ponderously on his heart. And it was with a definite sense of relief that he awakened to the fact that she was making herself ready for the street.

He neither moved nor opened his eyes until she had taken her departure. But, once sure that she was gone, he slipped hurriedly out of bed and just as hurriedly dressed. He gathered together the things he felt he might need, packed them in his handbag and slowly and deliberately inspected the studio. Then, with that valedictory look still in his eyes, he took up the packed hand-bag and stepped out of the room, carefully and quietly closing the door behind him.

An hour later he carried his heavy bag down the narrow stairway leading to Angelo Dellazio's cellar in Shimer place.

"Well I've come," he calmly announced to the plaster-powdered Italian stooping over a white pine box in which three dozen casts of Dante's head were being packed in chopped straw.

But little more than blank incredulity showed on the face of the brown-eyed Angelo.

"I mean it," explained Storrow, putting down his bag. "And you needn't worry about my not working. I'll give you all you can handle. All I want is enough to eat, and a place to sleep. That's fair, isn't it, until I show you what I can do?"

But Angelo, as he stood scratching his curly black curls, had his doubts about it being fair enough.

The Story of an Ambitious Young Sculptor Who Goes to New York to Win His Way

HER OWN WAY

STORY OF A YOUNG GIRL'S STRUGGLES

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

HER cousin had assured her that nobody knew the facts except himself and the widow of the thief—until they had been confided to Helen herself.

If Uncle Dan could be convinced of his nephew's innocence, that might it not mean to young Dan? Happiness, perhaps, and a restored reputation.

A Thrilling Idea

Helen thrilled at the idea. She recalled with a pang of pity her cousin's pallor, his sadness, his desire to help the woman whom he loved—his absolute inability to do this.

He was paying dearly for another person's sin and for his own loyalty.

She clasped her hands as an exciting thought struck her. She had now one hundred and fifty dollars. She could let her cousin have some money to send to that poor little woman out West.

It was all wonderful. She was still thinking for a long time.

Tomorrow she would get her uncle's check cashed at Terriberry's. Later she would send for her cousin and hand him a hundred dollars. She almost forgot her own unhappiness in the anticipation of the joy that would be his.

She would also tell him that his uncle was to be in New York soon. Perhaps the young man's ambitive nature would cause him refuse to call on his elderly relative while his name was under a shadow. Yet it might be that the earliest mood in which Uncle Dan had written to his niece might extend to his namesake.

Helen drew a long sigh. She was grateful that this letter had come just now, when she needed something to divert her mind from her recent conversation with Elizabeth.

Yet it was of Elizabeth and of Tom Andrews that she dreamed that night—not of her uncle and cousin.

The next day Helen had Uncle Dan's check cashed at Terriberry's store.

She folded the one hundred and fifty dollars up carefully and tucked them into the front of her blouse.

It was agreeable to reflect that she could make young Daniel Sloane happy by enabling him to help the woman he loved.

It also increased Helen's own self-respect, to be able at last to pay every cent of her room rent. If Mrs. Ovington complained further of gossip concerning the two cousins under her roof one of them could declare her willingness to move to another lodging place.

Sense of Relief

Helen thought of this possibility with a sense of relief. She had an inexplicable regret that her cousin was in the same house with herself.

When in his presence she pitied him. Away from him, she shrank from seeing him.

Yet his gentle, pleading manner had won no promise to meet and walk with him on Sunday afternoon.

Today was Saturday—a short day in the store.

TUBERCULAR WARNINGS

—By Brice Belden, M. D.—

THE presence of an active case of tuberculosis in an undertfed family is dangerous, but when vitality is properly sustained by a well-arranged dietary, there is little likelihood of communication of the disease, provided there is no intimate contact.

An individual in average health, whose diet is what it should be and who gets sufficient rest, is not likely to acquire tuberculosis.

Fresh air is very important, too, but protection depends essentially upon proper nutrition. One sees families who defy very successfully infection by the tubercle germ, yet who do not live under proper conditions as regards ventilation, but the explanation will always be found in the fact that they have an appreciation of the value of an abundance of properly cooked food and of milk and cream. Their resistance, of course, could just as well be further augmented by attention to ventilation.

Growing children especially require adequate feeding, and the cutting down of their milk supply is a mistaken phase of thrift. The reason why tuberculosis has spread so devastatingly among the children in the European war zone is chiefly because of the forced reduction in the milk supply. To economize in the use of milk is to go beyond the lines of safety.

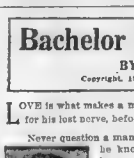
Bachelor Girl's Reflections

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1921, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

LOVE is what makes a man walk around the block three times, looking for his lost nerve, before ringing a girl's doorbell.

Never question a man's skill at love-making; just thank heaven that he knows HOW to kiss, and try to believe that he learned it at a correspondence school.



Before marriage a girl keeps her eyes wide open in the search for happiness, but after marriage if she's looking for happiness she has to keep them shut.

EVERY WOMAN'S QUESTION

There are gardens full of flowers that I feared to pluck;
There are eyes full of promise that I dared not believe;
There are lips full of sweetness from which I turned away
I wonder if Paradise holds anything for me one-half so beautiful

Of course, Solomon was the wisest man in the world. He didn't even need an encyclopaedia, with seven hundred wives to tell him everything before he had a chance to be curious about it!

Nowadays marriage is becoming such an uncertain affair that until the first two years have been safely passed, a bride wonders whether it is worth while to unpack her wardrobe trunk or not.

Somehow it takes all the tang out of a masculine "vice" to have the women come along and pick it up as a foolish feminine fad. There is no thrill or pleasure in doing things that you know your wife approves of and your grandmother indulges in.

Many a girl, who aspired to grow up and be a heartbreaker or a moving picture vampire, disappoints everybody by becoming nothing but a good, devoted, little model wife.

Turn your back on a woman—and watch her stick a pin in it!

THE WINTER SUITS

—By Rita Stuyvesant—

For this season there is no set rule either as to the length of coat, lines that it may assume, or the accompanying skirt. There is a model to "suit every figure" and nearly all colors and materials are being shown.

Duvet de laine in dark brown with slynx fur fashions an unusually smart suit for Winter days. The fur is used on a shaped band at the bottom of the coat, which, by the way, has a slight flare and is hip length. The sleeves flare slightly and are cuffed deeply with the slynx, and the collar, too, is of an attractive cut. The coat buttons diagonally, with three large buttons. There is nothing particularly noticeable about the skirt, except that it is narrow and a little longer than we have been seeing.

A box suit for the youthful figure is cut from grey-blue duvetyn and is trimmed with gray squirrel fur. The coat fails just to the hips, and is bordered in the fur. Raglan sleeves are finished with the squirrel, and there is a collar of the fur that adds warmth. The skirt is made in one piece, fastening in the back.

Putty colored gabardine combines with brown braid in a smart walking suit. The coat flares at the hips and is fitted above the waistline. Long roll revers face the coat, and the sleeves, unlike those of this season, are long and tight fitted. The braid is outlined several times on the jacket. With this one wears a skirt that is short and flares prettily.

LEAVEN OF LABOR

AN EXPERIMENT THAT PROVED A SUCCESS

By Dr. Wm. A. McKeever

THREE thousand University students don work clothes for a day and all join eagerly in tearing out old bleachers and tons of heavy timbers that did service in the old athletic field.

It was "Stadium Day" at the University of Kansas. A half-million-dollar structure was to replace the old wooden stands and bleachers, and a holiday had been declared so that all might assist in the work of demolition.

"It was the happiest day I ever spent at the University," said a sophomore. "Everyone treated the others as a common acquaintance."

"It was a wonderful day," said a thoughtful looking professor. "For once we were all on a common level. To me it seemed that the University had found a new way of expressing democracy."

So all agreed that Stadium Day was a glorious affair of good work and good feeling. The Chancellor was also in overalls and pioneered the first furrow for the new, pretentious structure soon to be erected.

But the main point for us parents and teachers to consider here is that the students touched the bedrock of democracy when they all came out in their common clothes to perform as common laborers.

The consciousness of manners and clothes that are distinctive; the idea of being on display before many critical eyes—this superficiality takes so much of the deeper human significance out of every-day existence. The generous impulses of unselfish love, of helpful sympathy and of free, open fellowship, is what we miss in the more formal affair.

But we can save democracy for society and the world through the right management of our children. That is, by requiring them during their growing years to perform all together certain of the exercises deeply inherent in human nature and deeply significant for human progress, like common labor, for example.

It was really pathetic to note how awkwardly some of the refined "softies" behaved in their work clothes and how the "husky" ones had them at a disadvantage. But let this "labor day" come about, not once in a college career, but once per week, and you will soon have a real soul of humanity shining out through it. Every Saturday should be "labor day" for every college student.

HER DARKENED HIS GRAY HAIR

Tells How He Did It.

Mr. J. A. McCrea, a well-known resident of California, who was called Daddy and Grandpa on account of his white hair, and who darkened it with a home-made mixture, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."—Advertisement.

Household Suggestions

To remove perspiration stains from white clothes dampen the articles with a little lemon juice and salt before it is put into soap and water.

* * *

To detect the presence of foreign matter in flour, squeeze a handful rigidly. If it dries together it is quite pure, but if it crumbles away it is adulterated with chalk or whitening.

* * *

Finely ground oatmeal is excellent for cleaning light suede gloves or shoes.

* * *

If the handles of white knives are discolored, rub them with pieces of damp newspaper dipped in fine sand, then polish with chamois leather.

* * *

Never use hot water to wash glasses that have contained milk until they have first been rinsed in cold water. The heat causes a cloudy appearance which is most difficult to remove.

Easy For Thin People to Put on Flesh and Gain Weight

It's such an easy matter nowadays for thin, weak, scrawny people to put on good, healthy, solid flesh and become plump and graceful that we've wondered why there are still so many people who seem to prefer to be "all skin and bones" and remain unpleasant to look upon.

Physicians have long known that whoever could discover a remedy that would cause the food that one puts into the stomach to turn into good rich, flesh making blood instead of going to waste, would also discover how to put healthy, beautiful flesh onto thin, under-nourished people, and this has now been accomplished.

If you are thin, under developed, nervous, weak, or lack vigor and vitality, you can secure at any good pharmacy at moderate cost a ten days' treatment of EVANS' TRIPLE PHOSPHATED, a new combination of flesh producing, nerve feeding, strength creating elements that is guaranteed to put good, solid, lasting flesh on your body and to make you strong, healthy and vigorous, or money back.

Physicians who have watched the results of the Evans' Triple Phosphated treatment are astonished at its rapid action—often in a month time to ten pounds of desirable weight is gained. Many Druggists, Parrish Drug Co., Arcadia Drug Co., North Station Drug Store, Richardson Drug Co., Lynn, Mass., and druggists everywhere, are glad to supply readers of this paper with Evans' Triple Phosphates and to guarantee it to do just what is claimed for it or money refunded.—Advertisement.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES

A nation-wide railway strike, if one is actually attempted, can have only one end.

* * *

If you are not familiar with what is happening, here are the facts, expressed briefly and clearly:

When the government took over control of the railroads during the war, Director-General McAdoo won great favor among railway workers by his attitude towards wages and working conditions; later Congress set up a governmental body to pass upon wages and working conditions, namely, the United States Railroad Labor Board.

Recently this governmental body reduced wages 12 per cent., the reduction taking effect on July 1, last.

More recently this same governmental body drew up certain changes in working conditions, including the sanctioning of the resumption of piece-work in railway shops.

It is against these decisions of this governmental body, the United States Railroad Labor Board, that the railwaymen's leaders have called a strike, to start on one group of roads on October 3, on a second group on November 1, and on a third group on November 15.

* * *

The strike, it will thus be seen, has not been called against any arbitrary decisions made by any of the railroads, for, as a matter of fact the railroads themselves no longer possess the power to fix wages and working conditions, but are under the orders of the United States Railroad Labor Board. The railroads the same way as the railway employes are.

Thus, if a strike be launched, the strikers will be fighting not merely the railway managements, but the United States Railroad Labor Board and that board's creator, the United States government.

* * *

In this country strikes against the government are rather forlorn hopes, at least in peace times. The American public are intensely loyal to their government, and if the railwaymen's leaders persist in carrying out their threat to fight the United States Railroad Labor Board and the United States government, any appeal from the government for public support in meeting the strike is certain to enlist response from every community in the land. That the American public will rally behind their government in enforcing decisions made by one of its own ostensibly important tribunals is a foregone conclusion.

* * *

Another consideration which is likely to weigh with the public is this:

Wages in most industries have already been reduced, and will shortly be reduced, from the high peaks reached during the frenzied war boom in industry, in accordance with changes in cost of living and in wages. The leaders of the railroad workers have taken the stand that, no matter what may happen to wages in other lines of activity, the wages of railway employes must be maintained at the war-time maximum.

It is against the ruling of the government's board that a 12 per cent reduction be made that the railwaymen's leaders have called a strike to tie up transportation all over the land. It is not superhumanly difficult to foresee what the attitude will be of non-railroad workers whose own wages have already been cut, and who figure that, in the end, the bill for the railwaymen's wages must be paid chiefly by the rank and file of other workers.

* * *

In face of all this, and taking into consideration also the vast motor truck, automobile and shipping facilities for handling freight, it is not easy to figure how those who have fled their followers into voting for a strike can hope to lick the government, especially as the country seems to have recently declared that no United States government mail trains must be operated during the strike. This direct challenge to the government is rather astounding.

* * *

So much for what strikes one as a fatal tactical blunder on the part of the men's leaders.

The public cannot be blamed if they suspect that the railway executives were anxious to bring about a "show-down" at this time. If not, why, in the name of common sense, did they petition for another reduction in wages while the workers and their leaders were still considering whether they should call a strike over the previous reduction?

Surely it would have been more prudent, if the maintenance of peace had been desired, not to fire this new bombshell at the heads of the men and their leaders.

* * *

Another point which the workers' leaders, some of them men of very great ability, are likely to bring forward very prominently is the criticized for not accepting the ruling of the Railroad Labor Board, is that the largest railroad in the country, the Pennsylvania, set an example in this respect by refusing to comply with orders issued by this same Railroad Labor Board. Seeing that the great, conservatively-managed Pennsylvania Railroad saw fit to challenge the authority of the Railroad Labor Board, the men's leaders doubtless may have felt that they couldn't be open to censure if they adopted similar tactics.

There is an old Wall Street axiom, "Don't sell stocks on strikes." My humble opinion is that this axiom is worth remembering at this time.

MARKET OPENS WEAK, BUT RALLIES

New Haven at New Record Low; Rails Improved in the General Advance

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

The New York market displayed strength at noon, most of its leaders showing gains. Trading was of less volume than during the preceding session, morning transactions aggregating about 212,000 shares. More business than that was done in the first hour on Monday, which fluctuated in the rally. But New Haven sold at a new low record price, getting down to 17¾, American Sugar also sold at a record low, falling below 50. Strongest issues included American Locomotive, Chandler, Beech Arrow preferred, Retail Stores, Cuba Cane preferred, International Harvester, Royal Dutch, Houston, Canadian Pacific, Great Northern preferred, Lehigh Valley, Northern Pacific and Reading. All advanced a point or more. Call loans renewed at 5 per cent.

In the foreign exchange market demand sterling was higher. Opening at $4.03½, it rose to Sterling $3.93¾, up ¾; French francs .0715, up .0008; lire .0535, up .0006; Belgian .0703, off .0009; marks .0054½, off .0004; guilders .3449, off .0017.

IRREGULAR AT START.

The price movement was mixed at the opening, but the majority of active issues were off and the tone heavy. Fluctuations at the outset were initial transactions and, in fact, throughout the first hour. For a few minutes the trend was toward a lower level, but a rally ensued and by mid-morning most stocks were showing gains. The transition from weak to strong was gradual. Overnight offerings were of moderate volume and demand was better. Traders who sold yesterday because of the railway strike thread were more conservative in commitments this morning and much of the improvement which followed the early decline was due to short covering. One favorable development was the railroad situation would make the situation awkward for the bear contingent. The borrowing demand for stocks after the close on Monday is described as fair, new contracts at 1-32 premium, while the rate for rails was 2¼ per cent.

WALL STREET NOT SCARED.

The calling of a railroad rail strike has been threatened before but this is the first time such an order has been issued. The effect upon the stock market was much less than might have been expected, manifesting how low down security business and the public stoppage of speculation has gone. Wall Street for that matter does not seem to be scared. According to all reports, liquidation in the early trading was of small consequence yesterday, but this is due to the fact that they are held chiefly by long term investors, as well as to the circumstance that the small crowd of outsiders who have been speculating in stocks of late have paid little attention to rails. The money situation is easier this week. The offering of call money on the stock exchange is a reassuring indication of confidence of this. In the outside market some loans were made as low as 2½ per cent. The Federal Reserve Bank in New York has called upon member institutions for $46,800,000 today.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Oct. 18.—Final prices were 6 to 13 points lower at the opening of the cotton market today. The trade was a fair buyer early on a scale down. COLLEGE SHOWS LOS ANGELES' GROWTH

Univ. of Calif. Planned for 1,600 Students 2 Years Ago, Faced by 9,000

By RICHARD SPILLANE

On the Road, Oct. 13.—There's a skyscraper in El Paso called the Mills Building. It is the tallest structure in that part of the world and probably there is not another within hundreds of miles to compare with it. From its roof you can look into the State of Chihuahua.

It is named for Anson Mills, who in 1859 surveyed the land that is now El Paso and Juarez on the Rio. He owns that building and he lives in El Paso. He is pretty old now, but not too old to travel, for he was on a journey when the writer went to that building. I accompanied him to look over the country, over and later read on the bronze shield at the entrance to the building of the achievements of the founder.

LOS ANGELES GROWING.

The best piece of stock a newspaperman obtained in a trip from Atlantic to Pacific and part way back was while crossing the Arizona desert. It was served to him by A. G. Huber of dining car No. 10902 of the Southern Pacific Railway, October 7, 1921.

Two years ago the University of California determined to establish a branch at Los Angeles. It was planned to provide for 1,600 students. By the time they got started on this buildings it was necessary to broaden the plans to accommodate 2,600. This year they were required to take care of 3,700, and even they turned away 3,800. Now President Barrows is looking for more students. He has to face a total of 9,000 students.

CANADA HAS BETTER HOTELS.

An American never realizes fully how poor a lot of waiters there are in the hotels and restaurants of the United States until he goes to Canada and is served by a trained servitor. Some of the best are found on the trains of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The Canadian waiter is trained for his business; the American waiter is not.

Just as far superior to the American waiter as is the Canadian, so is the high-class Canadian hotel superior to the American hotel.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad used to be famed for its curves. The Baltimore & Ohio Ltd. in the old days of the Southern Pacific line between Los Angeles and San Francisco was a stretch of 170 miles the Southern Pacific makes a complete circle several times.

ONE DOUBTS COMPASS.

There are portions of the journey South when Mount Shasta is south and west, when it is south and east, west. Then it is north, only to be south an hour later and north half an hour after that. Then for a while it varies from east to west. Then it is due south at noon. Then a train goes through a tunnel only to pass over the tunnel minutes later. A man journeying over that country will doubt the compass and the sun.

There is no sport in America more beautiful than Shasta Springs. There are hundreds of waterfalls, some of them as flimsy as the most delicate of lace.

NO CANDIDATE TO GET G.O.P. ENDORSEMENT

Committee 5 Does Not See Any Republican Standard Bearer in Mayoralty Aspirants

The Boston Republican City Committee will not endorse any candidate for Mayor.

This announcement was made today following the report filed with them by a committee of five recently appointed to make a thorough survey of the political situation.

Any hope that Murphy, Pelletier, Curley, O'Connor and Baxter may have entertained relative to support from the Republican City Committee is blasted. It is intimated in some quarters that one or two candidates were hoping for at least a wee bit of moral support from the G. O. P. machine, which, on the face of its own announcement, now ceases to function as a political machine in Boston's mayoralty fight.

The committee submitted the following report, after conferring with the Good Government Association and the Bonded League of Women Voters.

"That in their opinion there is no Republican in sight at the present time who would be willing to take the nomination under existing circumstances, whom they can recommend to this committee for indorsement. They therefore recommend that the Republican City Committee do not indorse any candidate for Mayor."

LYTHGOE URGES CONSERVATION OF FOOD

Every Ounce Must Be Used to Best Advantage in Case of Strike

Herman C. Lythgoe, director of the Division of Food and Drugs of the State Board of Health, in discussing the menace of the strike on the railroads said:

"Every ounce of food must be used to the best advantage if the present supply is to last for six weeks."

The last figures compiled by his department show the storage of food on September 1. At that time there were four dozens of eggs, 3¼ pounds of pork, 1½ pounds of butter, 1 1-10 pounds of beef, 1-5 pound of poultry and 1-5 pound of lamb in storage for every person in the State. The total was 51,980,000 pounds of foodstuffs, as compared with 48,456,000 the preceding year, a drop of 16,000,000 pounds.

STORAGE FIGURES.

The September 1 figures were as follows:

	1921	1920	1919
Eggs (dozen)...	15,252,140	15,443,430	17,999,994
Butter (lbs.)...	18,587,210	19,055,200	20,715,491
Cheese (lbs.)...	1,000,000	1,000,000	1,000,000
Beef	4,200,029	10,712,072	No data

Fish (pounds) ...	9,564,000	9,000,000	No data
Total	51,980,000	48,456,000

The extent to which the people of Massachusetts depend upon the railroads for food was emphasized by data obtained today from the Department of Agriculture and the Division of Food and Drugs in the Department of Health at the State House.

RECEIVED BY RAIL.

According to officials in the division of food and drugs, practically all food except fish placed in cold storage is received by rail.

The amount of meats and other food which the railroads would be expected to carry into Boston in the coming November, the first month of the projected strike, officials said could be gauged by the figures for November of last year.

The figures for that month, showing the amount of food placed in cold storage, are:

Eggs (dozen)	191,460
Butter (pounds)	454,200
Poultry (pounds)	1,000,000
Meats (pounds)	3,998,765
Fish (pounds)	1,740,000

The figures for the month of December, 1920, are:

Eggs (dozen)	346,200
Butter (pounds)	201,702
Poultry (pounds)	3,800,907
Meats (pounds)	1,000,000
Fish (pounds)	1,127,200

The data concerning fruits and vegetables received by rail, as given by Willard A. Munson, Director of the Division of Markets in the Department of Agriculture, showed that in October of last year 3,039 cars of fruits and vegetables came into the State by rail; 561 cars by boat, and over 400 cars represented the quantity raised in Massachusetts and trucked into the markets by the farmers.

According to the same official, the total number of carloads of fruits and vegetables brought into the State by rail in 1920, including the amount raised in this State, was 27,010.

Director Munson pointed out that the largest proportion of the fruits received into the State come from far distant points. A considerable proportion of the apples received here, come from Oregon and Washington; oranges and citrus fruits from Florida and California, and strawberries and other "luxuries" from the South.

DEFENDS CONDITIONS AT PRE-VOCATIONAL SCHOOL

Vehement denials of charges that the Berkeley Pre-Vocational School quarters are unsanitary and unhealthful, contained in orders issued from Washington closing the institution, were made today by local officials who have been connected with the school since the orders were issued by Director Forbes of the Veterans' Bureau, who declared that the school conditions had been found to be unsanitary and dangerous to health, and added that he believed the school was "vouchering the government for services never rendered."

Rev. Eyal Benjamin, principal of the school, came to the defense of the institution, declaring that any assertion that health conditions are bad is "silly." In this he was sustained by P. C. Moore of Newton. Neither would answer the charges of padding the government vouchers.

Supplying this good-looking automobile with its proper name should not take long.

Don't forget the "curb" idea. Keeping an eye open in the parking places, looking them over from the walk, is easier than asking questions or consulting catalogues.

Anybody can learn the names of these motor cars. Suppose, for example, you were a young reporter and every day for fifty days the city editor should give you one of these cars to identify. You would like that job, especially if, at the end of fifty days, you were assured of a bonus of $500.

Please remember that, in addition to identifying the cars, contestants are required to write "Safe Right-Drive Rims" essays. This is a good time to be getting your ideas into shape.

How shall we make the streets and boulevards of New England safer for both driver and pedestrian? What would YOU suggest, This is what you are to write a letter about. Not less than fifty and not more than 100 words.

One reader asked, the other day, for information as to the "scoring." What he wanted to know, as we understand it, is how many points each identification will count and what will be the valuation placed upon helpful letters.

That question will be answered here tomorrow.

Are you quitting the Boston American regularly? There will not be another printing of back pictures, you know. Tell the newsboy to reserve a copy for you EVERY day and avoid disappointment which may be the lot of those who take part in an eleventh-hour rush for "back numbers."

$5,000,000 CITY JOBLESS FUND PROPOSED

Watson Introduces Order in Council to Obtain Legislative Permission for Bond Issue

Shall the city of Boston petition Governor Cox to call a special session of the Legislature to consider the the passage of a bill to allow the city to issue bonds in the amount of $5,000,000, outside the debt limit, for the purpose of providing work for the unemployed through the construction of streets and by other public improvements?

President Watson of the City Council presented a resolution that calls for an answer to this question. It was referred to the finance commission for study and report next Monday.

"Boston should set an example to the other cities of the country in dealing with the unemployment crisis and should not lag behind," Watson declared, in speaking on the resolution. "Let us not tackle this matter in a small way. Let us go at it in a big way. It is not the problem of this generation alone but belongs in part to the future.

NIGGARDLY PROGRAM.

"Suffering is terrible, and it is growing worse every day. A job here and another there will not settle it. The emergency must be attacked in a large way. We cannot keep within the debt limit and think of making any progress in dealing with it. We must go beyond the limit, we must vision big things and we must go at them boldly or if we would provide the means of making a real fight.

"Let us not take it as a joke. We are too prone to do things that would be interesting in any city of respectable size in the West. We are niggardly in our civic enterprise. Look at our City Hall, for instance. It belongs in a junk heap—"

Councillor Hagan: "It's a disgrace!"

Councillor Hagan agreed that the problem should be handled in a large way, but called attention to the fact that Mayor Peters has appointed a special commission to deal with the unemployment question in this city and thought it would be well to have the resolution referred to that body for consideration.

He did not wish to criticise the Chamber of Commerce, but wondered why it had not begun work on the erection of its proposed new building. He declared that the law restricting the height of buildings in this city stands in the way of big property projects and referred to the need of a big hotel for Boston, on Washington street, because the law would not permit a height that would insure its successful operation.

To illustrate that the local army of unemployment is being enlarged every week, Councillor Moriarty introduced the fact that 1,000 men dismissed by the Federal Railway has laid off 3,000 men, since last Friday. When men are laid off in that number small merchants will be of no avail, he said, and, therefore, favored the resolution of Councillor Watson.

He emphasized the testimony of Major Thomas H. Sullivan, commissioner of public works, on another matter that came before the Council in executive session this morning, indicating that big municipal enterprises are good investments for the city. The commissioner had explained how certain meters had cost a good deal of money for installation but had been the means of saving money for the city.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP A SUCCESS.

The commissioner said that, on the contrary, the city's ownership of the water supply had been a fine investment, that the city had helped to reduce the city's debt every year, and that the service was better than it could be under private operation.

An order, submitted by Councillor Donoghue, was adopted calling upon the city department heads for a report at the next meeting of the unexpended balances on their accounts and an estimate of the balances that will be on hand at the end of the fiscal year.

The Councillor explained that the purpose of the order is to use the combined surplus for providing an extra fund for employment.

Much Ado About Nothing

Why Shouldn't an American Use Slang in Talking to the Young Prince of Wales?

A man circulated a report that the wife of Mayor Hylan in replying to an expression of admiration for the city of New York, by the Prince of Wales, remarked, "You have said a mouthful." The remark was never made and the man who circulated the rumor has publicly apologized.

But what is all the ado about? "You have said a mouthful" is a very common, modern expression. It has almost ceased to be slang. No one would have thought it disgraceful and discourteous if it had not been said to the Prince of Wales. Now, who under Heaven considers that one is under obligation to be more careful in his language to the ordinary little chap called the Prince of Wales than to any other young fellow?

If the remark were made to some elderly statesman whose reputaton for dignity and gravity were known, it, even then would not be worth while talking about. But to pretend a shock at the use of a common colloquialism in conversation with an ordinary boy indicates the existence of rather a disgusting state of mind among a few of our people. We hope that their number is indeed just a few.

More Five-Cent Fares

Benefits of Public Operation of Railways Shown in Further Extension of Zone

The Boston Elevated has again extended the five-cent fare zone. This is a considerable extension and indicates what lies in the future.

Thus, slowly but surely we are beginning to realize the benefits of public operation. The public trustees are rebuilding the road, putting back into it what was taken out of it by its old private management, making it healthy and sound, financially and physically, and are slowly returning to the five-cent fare.

Let the good work go on for Boston's sake and so that other cities may profit by our example.

Big Potato Crop Good News

The State of Maine is harvesting a great potato crop. This is good news to New England. It is the harbinger of a return to our normal prosperity.

The blow which the arbitrary deflation by the Federal Reserve Board and the banks struck the farmers was the beginning of our hard times, and we shall not see a return to better times and to full employment of our labor until the farmer has recouped his losses and is able to buy.

Chance for Every Boy and Girl

In the Public Schools

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Millions of children have begun the year of study, of mental work—a year of hope and opportunity.

In the great city schools of iron and brick and glass the children go in hundreds of thousands—a great procession blocking the streets at the morning and evening hours.

In the country, on lonesome hillsides, the small schools are open, patient women are doing the work that means so little pay and so little gratitude, and a few children gather from far and near under the slanting shingle roof and the flag that flies above it.

Fathers and mothers should talk to their children and impress upon them what the public schools mean.

For ages human beings were ruled, they were miserable, oppressed and helpless, BECAUSE THEY WERE IGNORANT.

Very slowly the people at the bottom moved toward the top. Slowly and painfully, in one country after another, they acquired the greatest of all rights, THE RIGHT TO KNOWLEDGE.

In this country, more than in any other, that right has been developed.

Every boy and girl who will may learn. The wonderful art of printing and the knowledge of reading open all science, all history, everything that is worth while to the mind of every child.

The boys as they go to school look very much alike and act very much alike. The big boys tease the little boys, and the little boys retaliate, when they dare.

A spirit looking down from above upon the children would see little difference. But the difference is there, and it is largely in the spirit in which the opening of school is greeted.

Try to make your children realize that school is THEIR OPPORTUNITY. Make them feel that when the school doors open it means more to them than if the door of some great mine of Aladdin's wealth were opened before them.

Wealth without knowledge is nothing. Knowledge alone makes possession worth while.

Tell your boys and girls how the greatest success in the world has been won by study, and usually by children who had little opportunity—except the chance to get knowledge.

Make them understand how long it has taken to establish public schools and let everybody learn.

Tell your little boy that he has as good a chance today as any boy born in the country—IF HE WILL TAKE IT.

Make your little girl feel that what the school teaches to her she will teach to her children in the future and do work as important as that of any man.

Interest yourself in the school life of your children, in their studies, in their success, and especially in their disappointments and school sorrows—those sorrows are very real to little children.

If you can do so, become acquainted with the teacher in whose hands your children are placed. Make the teacher feel that you appreciate the work that the teacher does—the greatest work in the world.

Make your children realize what they owe to the teacher—OBEDIENCE, RESPECT AND GRATITUDE.

U. S. Marine at Turning Point

By RAYMOND LESTONNAT,
Member of the Superior Council of the French Merchant Marine.

Paris, Oct. 13.—The United States is at the turning point of her history. Give her the right men at the helm and she will be dominant on the high seas and in every market in the world within two generations.

"Neptune's trident is the sceptre of the world." A trite saying, but a true one, as was proven in the last war. Had Germany been mistress of the seas she would not have lost the war and a million American soldiers would never have arrived in France.

But Neptune's sceptre is now put up for auction among three great maritime powers—Great Britain, the United States and Japan.

Of the three rivals England is the one most menaced. She is old, she is tired, she is more a slave to tradition and to routine than the younger powers; more apt to rest her oars on her past glory.

War between Japan and the United States is almost certain—some time. Will the disarmament conference result in America being caught napping?

Smiles

TACTFUL

"So," said the old general, "you think you would make a good valet for an old wreck like me, do you? I have a glass eye, a wooden leg, and a wax arm that needs looking after, not to mention false teeth and so forth."

"Oh, that's all right, sir," replied the applicant, enthusiastically. "I've had lots of experience. I worked for six years in the assembling department of an automobile factory."

Erin Follows U. S. Tradition

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

IRELAND follows American tradition in seeking freedom for herself and independence of Great Britain. Which practically means England!

Ireland has never been voluntarily an integral part of Great Britain. In fact, that group of islands in the North Atlantic is officially called Great Britain AND Ireland.

Apparently, the little conjunction "and" has not, in 700 years, succeeded in really conjoining those two great masses of land, consisting of Ireland on the one hand and England, Scotland, and Wales on the other.

It certainly has not united their peoples in such sympathy as alone can cement a stable and lasting union.

If now the Dail Eireann, the Republican Parliament—which is the only authority that Southern Ireland recognizes—by mere assertion of freedom, waves into nothingness those 700 years of involuntary association with England, doubtless that act will duly become as effective as our own Declaration of Independence, when we also had wearied of being governed from abroad and against our will.

More Than Century

Apparently, a century and a half has not sufficed to teach England the lesson of 1776!

Perhaps, America is still regarded as only a lost colony, which the "Mother Country" will some day regain, either by federation or by conquest. Perhaps!

If there is anything approaching such a feeling, opinion, or hope in England, then naturally instead of their tearing that De Valera will follow literally our example, the English may cherish the notion that, in time, America will decline into the relative supineness and dependence of Ireland.

Is that as it may, it is evident that England begins to realize that at least the south of Ireland is desperately determined upon full independence.

Just there is the pity of it—and one of the grave difficulties of the situation—namely, that the Irish people are not a unit, either in national aspiration or in economic interest.

Curiously like the United States—but with an inverted difference, since our disunion developed after independence—Ireland also has her problem of the North and the South.

How far that problem may be intrinsic and how far it may have been artificially fostered, probably only Downing Street knows. And Downing Street will never tell, for the secrets of British diplomacy are loyally safeguarded by even the contending political parties.

To an outsider, it seems incredible that so militant a nationalconsciousness could have developed in Southern Ireland without at least a corresponding tendency in the north—unless that tendency had been cleverly and sedulously counteracted by influences emanating from England.

Kept It Loyal

Economic encouragement, political grants and favors, and subtle social entanglements have probably all been used as a means to the end of keeping Northern Ireland "loyal" to the British Crown.

Also, an outsider is bound, in all faidness, to recognize the menace to Great Britain of an unfriendly, and even possibly hostile, Ireland in her side yard, as it were.

However, this particular difficulty could be met with mutually and sufficiently binding guarantees to diminish, to a vanishing minimum, this obvious danger to England.

Any seemingly contrary conduct during the late war must be understood as an expression of Southern Ireland's assertion of the right to act as she might choose in order to strike an opportune blow for her own independence.

It happens that the writer considers this to have been a woeful mistake; both of strategic opportunism, being a practical betrayal of Ireland's cause and welfare, and of disloyalty to what was not merely England's war, but humanity's struggle to maintain its gains.

All that is now past and can be forsiven. As, doubtless, also Ireland would be willing to forgive and to try to forget England's age-long inhumanity to her.

The Irish are too warm-bloodedly generous a people to be vengeful.

A free and friendly united Ireland would be happy and prosperous herself, and a powerful ally to a frankly friendly England.

Letters to the Editor

Birth Strike

Editor Boston American:

I wish to thank Miss Dorothy Kent Manners, the advocate of reducing excess population. At last one person has hit the right mark. If a birth strike was launched the government would take notice and give the people the helping the workers vainly cry for. There are always too many slaves in the world. Miss Manners has the right idea, may she keep up the good work.

A BACHELOR.

America's Place

Editor Boston American:

In case of a disarmament conference would not the agreement of the United States to anything which the other powers will be willing to allow her in the way of future armament status amount to the retirement of the United States from hope of leadership amongst nations? Would it be advisable for her to become a party to an agreement which would pledge and bind her forever to take a secondary place among the powers of the world?

KEEP YOUR HEAD UP

Keep your head up.

As long as you can do this you are not a failure.

Notice the derelicts you see shuffling along the streets—they all have their heads down, shoulders drooping forward.

There is something about the man who can square his shoulders and look everybody in the eye, unflinchingly; something which bespeaks him as a man of action, to be depended upon to deliver.

The prospective employer wants a man who has pride and ambition.

When you walk along the street with your head down you advertise yourself as losing ambition or lacking vigor in what you do.

No matter how discouraged you may be, no matter what hard luck you have encountered or experienced, do not let it become apparent from the sagging, downcast look which indicates discouragement.

Hold your head up.

TWO NOTED SONS OF DIJON, FRANCE

By Garrett P. Serviss

DIJON, France, Oct. 13.—How the city that has been the birthplace of a great man wears his memory as a crown! This city, the old capital of the Dukes of Burgundy, where this is written, has more than one such crown. To say nothing of its famous dukes, the wonderful carved tombs of two of whom are adorn the double-starred art treasures of France, Dijon boasts of a pair of sons either of whom would shed glory on the greatest capitals in the world.

One of these is St. Bernard of Clairvaux, the incomparable preacher of the Second Crusade, in the twelfth century, the crusade of the aristocrats, when, on the historic hill of Vezelay, kings, dukes, counts, lords and barons knelt at the feet of the marvellous orator and received the crusader's cross from his hands.

From France he was called into Germany, which he set on fire with enthusiasm for the holy war aginst the Musulmans, the Emperor Conrad being the first to kneel before the preacher and take the cross, followed by a multitude of barons and knights, and "the cry of war was heard from the Rhine to the Danube." Louis VII., King of France, led the crusade, accompanied by Queen Eleonore and followed by 100,000 warriors, while the Emperor Conrad set out afterward with an army that the old chroniclers describe as too great to be numbered.

A Spoken "Headline"

Of course, I have no intention of retelling the story of the Crusades, though history contains nothing more strange tragic, thrilling and romantic, but I simply wish, by this example, to show the enormous power and influence possessed and exercised by St. Bernard in an age when there were no newspapers and when almost nobody could have read them if they had existed.

One flaming "headline," however, not printed, but uttered by hundreds of thousands of voices, ran through Christendom, among whole nations roused to arms, wherever St. Bernard's inspiration words were met with the universal shout: "God wills it! God wills it!"

But the preaching of the crusade was only an incident in the career of this wonderful son of Dijon—this monk, born rich and an aristocrat, but devoting himself almost from boyhood to the cause of religion and living a life of incredible physical privation and constant labor of the hardest kind. He was without doubt the most influential man of his time, a maker, guider and protector of Popes, a critic and corrector of kings and emperors, a wielder of moral energy that bore down all resistance throughout Christian Europe.

And all this he owed to his singleness of purpose, his concentration of mind and the matchless power of his personality—for his words have no special magic when they are read. His was an age of oratory, when men had to learn and be convinced and aroused by the spoken word.

The marvels of the printing press were to charge all that, but only after a lapse of many hundred years. Today oratory has become only an interesting and sometimes captivating art, capable occasionally of producing great local effects; in St. Bernard's time it was practically the only means by which a great mind could teach the multitude.

A Mental Revolution

It was a great mental revolution that substituted the newspaper for the orator. We see the change in action during our American revolution as well as during the French revolution of 1789. In the first we see Patrick Henry rousing the colonists with fiery oratory—"Give me liberty or give me death!"—while at the same time Tom Paine appears with his irresistible writings, his clear reasoning, his telling phrases, reaching farther and travelling faster than Henry's burning words.

In the other case there stands Mirabeau, speaking as few men have ever spoken, but yet overmatched in his own cause by the pamphleteers and writers of the news sheets, quicker, surer, plainer, wider in their effects upon the public. Men were beginning to read as well as to listen, and they found that they could take the printed words home and read them again and again. So, at last, the printing press and the writer behind it bore off the crown so long worn by the master speaker.

The other great son of Dijon of whom I have spoken was also one of the greatest orators that ever lived—Bossuet, the marvellous preacher, before whose pulpit kings, queens and courtiers sat listening, thrilling and sometimes weeping; Bossuet, whose funeral orations for dead kings, queens, statesmen and generals have embalmed their memories in the world's literature.

"IF I WERE KING" THE REFORMS I'D WORK

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1921, by Newspaper Features Service, Inc.

THE sun do move."

Here is wisdom from Mexico:

"I would rather teach my people the use of the toothbrush and the bathtub than that of the .44-calibre gun," so says President Obregon.

Sometimes I think, out of any situation when a people half-civilized, half on the higher plane, comes to be examined, and when a man is found who knows his people and his problem, there appears some things we could find use for in our "Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave."

Our cities are swarming with candidates for toothbrush and bathtub ministrations. Our in the country there are many who need the same kind of teaching and practice. Why waste so much time on firearms?

There is a secret lure in the traditional methods of kings and dictators. I forgot who it was said that every man is a believer in the right of kings—provided he himself could be king.

What Might Happen

What reforms we would all work, if the purple of royalty—a real royalty which would work, and be potent among our subjects—could be ours!

The toothbrush and bathtub policy, for example. How healthy would our tyrannical will be imposed upon the world, no matter how our subjects rebelled. And there would be rebellion, one may be certain. Think of the chances a good tyrant would find in the government of any nation if there could be—what must be confessed impossible—a benevolent kingdom of unchecked authority.

The tyrant could banish all foods he did not enjoy, all books he found dull—quite a library—all music not suited to his ear, and the pictures he detested. He could make the lawyer over into a blacksmith and the shoe clerk into a banker. And he could compel the banks to cash his checks whether he had a balance on hand or not.

It may be The King would say there should be no velvet and jewels and lace worn in a world where there was suffering among the houseless poor. He would shut all mills, factories and mines where children work, and give the little white slaves first a good outing with plenty of good things to eat, and then would ordain their education in schools of exactly the right kind.

Schools—what a field for his autocratic will would be the schools present!

The children should have the first steps of education first. They should read. They should spell correctly, and write a legible hand. And the first parts of the arithmetic should be their mental possession before any other studies were allowed them.

Yes—the ancient three R's should be their study, and nothing, grade or no grade, should intervene to set them away from the education everyone needs. "We must walk before we can run," the benevolent despot would declare. And even college graduates should be made to spell correctly and pronounce their words with an accuracy rare in this day of lazy speech.

But—Would It Work?

And what a glorious time The King would have building and causing to be built the houses in which he and his subjects lived! Each of the families should have some say about their own home, but the autocrat would have his way about certain features of the houses. Room enough for all, living rooms and big porches and a general thought for the children as well as the grown-ups, would rule.

There might be liberty to have an old-fashioned "parlor," all stiff with shiny furniture and steel engravings—but there would be no compulsion for anyone to live or move or have their being in such a place. Each house would be of the Liberty Hall variety, and beauty should reign so far as the inhabitants would allow the original plan to be carried out.

But there are no kings and probably never will be any more, at least in our country, and probably soon not any in all the world.

Ah, this is only a foolish dream of what might be if The King could be and act just as you and I think he ought to act. For we know, after all, that no king of human origin would, even for a day, act as we have dreamed.

The old world must spin on its wise democratic way and the human race must slowly crawl upward and onward. It cannot be speeded up.

Nevertheless, three cheers for the toothbrush and bathtub idea that returns by way of Mexico!
